Apartments, Law Suits To Council

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The Common Council meets Tuesday night faced with a varied agenda ranging from a half million dollar law suit against the city to a proposal for new apartments in the upper Pearl Street area.

The $500,000 law suit is being filed by Joyce A. Kenyon of 17 South Street, Rhinebeck as a result of injuries she claims to have suffered after an accident early on the morning of Nov. 2 last year. The accident occurred on the corner of Wurts and Spring Streets because, the Kenyon woman claims, of an improperly placed stop sign.

Another suit has also been filed, for $50,000 by Rose M. Dickinger of Ashokan Road in Lomontville, who claims she was injured in a fall in front of city hall on Oct. 24 last year. Both suits will be referred to Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein.

The proposal to build apartments in the upper Pearl Street area is from William and Lillian Zang. The Zargs are petitioning the Common Council to change the zoning of the land from its present 3-R to 4-R to permit the erection of apartments. The apartments are proposed on land that is both in the city and in the town of Ulster. The Zangs wrote the Council that if their petition is approved they will build apartments of "the highest type and best quality."

That petition will be referred to the Laws and Rules Committee of the Council and subsequently to the city planning board and the county planning board for approval. Public hearings will also have to be held before the Council can act on the petition.

Also on file is a request for salary increases for a number of staff members of the Kingston Housing Authority including its director, Alexander Yosman. The authority asks that Yosman's salary be increased from $14,700 per year to $15,700 per year effective April 1, 1970. It was noted that the salary increases are done so at no cost to the city.

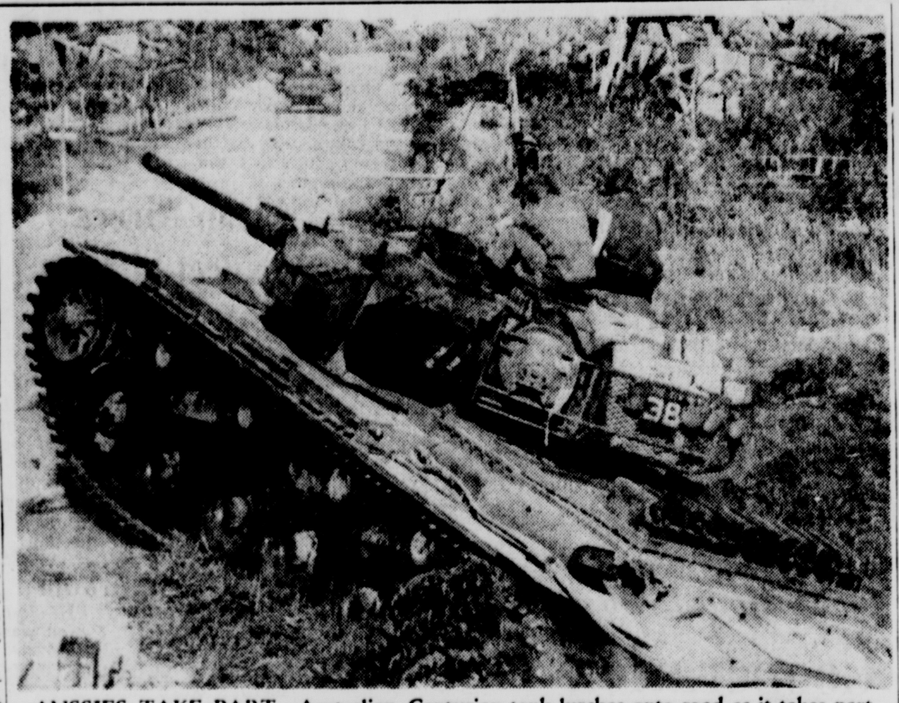

Sister Mary Charles, administrator of Benedictine Hospital, has a request in for the Council to approve a helicoper pad for the hospital. She says that a helicoper could be beneficial in removing accident victims from outlying areas to the hospital in less time than an ambulance.

The Department of Public works has a request in for approval of low bids on four new pieces of equipment, two six-yard dump trucks, a refuse collector and a motor grader. The equipment is valued at $51,810 and was provided for in the 1970 budget.

The aldermen are expected to approve a resolution from the Laws and Rules Committee asking for a state grant for a planning program for the revision of the city's zoning law. The $12,000 project will cost the city less than $2,000.

There is also a request in for the approval of the city's so-called "workable program" whereby the city documents its progress and compliance with federal programs in order to continue to receive assistance or apply for any new programs.

The Council convenes at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at city hall on Broadway.

Terrorists Blast Saigon Theatre

SAIGON (UPI) — Terrorists tonight exploded a plastic bomb in Saigon's largest movie theater. The blast ripped a hole through a wall into a huge American bachelor officers' club next door.

U.S. military police said "a few" persons apparently were injured. They said all of the injured appeared to be Vietnamese.

Security forces sealed off the area which is on one of Saigon's principal street intersections in the business district. Hundreds of spectators gathered.

The explosion in a rest room on the second floor of the theater came during an intermission at the Rex Theater which had about 250 patrons at the time.

The Rex adjoins the six-story Rex bachelor officers' club which houses several hundred field grade American officers.

The club, which has a swimming pool on the roof, is about a block from the Caravelle Hotel.

It was the second bombing of a theater in downtown Saigon in 10 days. Terrorists exploded a plastic charge at the Dai Nam Theater, the city's second largest, on Jan. 20 but the theater was empty and there were no injuries.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops shelled 33 allied targets during the night, the most in nine days, but elsewhere the action was light. The North Vietnamese president broadcast congratulations to his troops for their "victory" in shooting down two American aircraft over North Vietnam on Wednesday.

The shellings killed two Americans and wounded a third, most of them in the 11 provinces around Saigon. Ground fire destroyed an American helicopter, wounding two Americans.

War communiques said fighting was light throughout South Vietnam, with Allied forces killing nearly 100 Communist troops Thursday and today at a cost of one American dead and six wounded.

$200 Billion In Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will propose a $200.8 billion budget for the next business year, with a $5.8 billion cut in military spending designed to help provide a surplus of $1.3 billion, the Washington Post said today.

The $200.8 billion figure, for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, compares with government spending of $197.8 billion for the current business year and is $1 billion to $2 billion less than expected, the newspaper said.

The formal budget along with Nixon's message is scheduled to be sent to Congress Monday.

The Post, citing figures it said are contained in the President's economic report, said defense spending will drop to $73.6 billion—$5.8 billion less than current levels—under the proposal. It said outlays for space, agriculture and veterans benefits are also below this year's level.

The Post said Nixon will endorse "a moderate degree of monetary restraint" and hint at some relaxation in the anti-inflation tight money policies. It said Nixon "supports these fiscal and monetary policies in order to encourage a revival of housing construction, which has lagged badly in the face of tight money and high interest rates."

Nixon will forecast a flat economic performance for the first half of the current year, the Post said, with a moderate revival during the second half.

It said Nixon will predict that "some increase in the rate of unemployment is possible" during the first half and welfare and unemployment compensation programs will be recommended to help the situation.

The Post described Nixon's overall objective as "economic credibility" with the specific objective for the coming business year being a reduction in the price spiral and a revival of the growth of real output.

It said Nixon, in his report, cites previous commitments for spending in such programs as Social Security and notes that the government cannot afford all new proposals, but must pick its priorities.

Infirmary Set To Receive That Million

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

KINGSTON

Ulster County will receive a $1 million federal grant for construction of its proposed 200-bed infirmary as originally anticipated, it was announced Thursday in a clarification of the initial word which stated that only $300,000 would be allocated.

The offices of Senators Jacob K. Javits and Charles E. Goodell yesterday clarified information received by them from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The $300,000 grant from Hill-Burton funds, both offices said, was a grant from last year's federal budget. However, they said an additional $700,000 has been allocated from the 1970 budget, bringing the total to $1 million which covers one-third of the estimated construction cost of the county facility.

Chairman of the County Legislature Peter J. Savago, who is infirmary project director said, "We were somewhat dismayed and surprised by the Wednesday announcement because we were led to believe that the county would receive at least $1 million or about one-third of the cost of construction. We were elated to learn of the correction in the amount of the grant," Savago said.

The New Paltz Republican said the county had already received a commitment of $1 million for the project and could not comprehend how HEW arrived at the $300,000 amount. A copy of a letter sent to Sen. Goodell in April, 1969, by Dr. Harold M. Graning, assistant surgeon general and director of Health Facilities Planning and Construction Services, received by Savago, advised that the county would receive the $1 million grant.

In August 1969 Savago said he wrote to the Division of Hospital Review and Planning, advising them that the county would accept the $1 million allocation, which covers less than one-third of the total construction costs, if it did not prejudice the county's right to request additional Hill-Burton funds to complete the project.

Eligibility for Hill-Burton funds ranges up to $3 million and Savago said the county is anticipating that additional funds may be available to complete the infirmary project.

The confusion in regard to the grant came in a telegram from Congressman Hamilton Fish's office, Chairman Savago said, in which the allocation was stated as $3 million. Savago said he was initially very pleased by the unexpected windfall, but had his doubts that this amount was correct.

Further checks by The Freeman and Chairman Savago created more confusion when both senator's offices listed the amount at $300,000.

The County Legislature approved the infirmary project estimated to cost $4,720,300 in September 1968 even before a commitment for federal funds was made. At that time Welfare Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons said that from his conversations with officials he was very optimistic about the Hill-Burton grant and that the county had an A priority for a period of years.

In the discussions at that time a $4,085,000 bond issue was proposed with the stipulation that this would be adjusted when aid funds are made available. A capital note for $215,000 would be used to cover initial costs. Architect Albert E. Milliken was preparing the drawings.

In all discussions it was indicated that the site for the new infirmary would be the 68 acre county property on Golden Hill adjacent to the former TB Hospital now being used as an infirmary annex.

Chairman Savago said there is no reason now why bids for the project cannot be advertised next month.

Yablonski— 3 Indicted

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Three Cleveland men, already facing state murder charges in Pennsylvania, have been indicted by a federal grand jury for conspiracy in the slaying of mine union leader Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski.

In a seven-count indictment Thursday, the grand jury alleged the three defendants considered poisoning Yablonski or bombing his bedroom before Yablonski, his wife and daughter were shot to death New Year's Eve at their home in Clarksville, Pa.

Paul E. Gilly, 36; Claude E. Vealey, 27; and Aubran W. Martin, 23, were not in the courtroom when the indictment was returned after three days of secret testimony. They have been confined to a maximum security section of Cuyahoga County Jail, under a total of $775,000 bond, since their arrest Jan. 21.

Gilly's wife and James C. Phillips, 22, identified as a member of the conspiracy who backed out before the killings, were named as co-conspirators but not co-defendants. Phillips reportedly supplied the FBI with information that led to the arrests.

Gilly, Vealey and Martin and "persons unknown" specifically were charged with obstructing justice and denying a union member his rights, federal offenses that carry a maximum penalty of six years in prison and $6,000 in fines. However, they could be given death sentences in Pennsylvania if convicted of the actual murders.

The indictment said the "defendants and co-conspirators in various combinations" made trips from Cleveland to La Follette, Tenn.; Clarksville, Pa.; Washington, D.C.; Scranton, Pa., and Beckley, W.Va. to further their plan "to kill Joseph Yablonski."

The defendants and others also discussed various means of killing the union insurgent, according to the indictment, including:

—"Poisons, particularly arsenic.

—"Bombing by a charge of dynamite placed near Joseph Yablonski's bedroom window.

"—Bombing by a charge of dynamite attached to Joseph Yablonski's automobile.

—"Gunshots fired from a rifle and gunshots fired at close range."

"—The defendants selected gunshots fired at close range as being . . . likely to produce death rather than merely injure or wound," the indictment said.

Weekend Off For Carswell

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee has recessed hearings after testimony one member called "damning" and "extremely damaging" to Judge G. Harrold Carswell's Supreme Court nomination.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., indicated he expects the hearings to wind up with one more day of testimony—probably Monday or Tuesday.

The hearings recessed after a long Thursday session that included testimony from three law professors opposing Carswell.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said the testimony of Rutgers University law professor John Lowenthal about Carswell's handling of a case involving voter registration workers in Florida should be answered.

Although Bayh said he supposed it would be pointless to recall Carswell, now a judge on the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals, the senator told newsmen: "This kind of testimony, unless rebutted, is extremely damaging." Carswell told the committee earlier this week he could not discuss court decisions.

Lowenthal testified that in 1964 Carswell, then a U.S. district court judge in Tallahassee, Fla., had been "extremely hostile" to a habeas corpus petition he filed to free seven persons jailed on criminal trespass charges after they urged Negroes to register as voters.

Although Carswell granted the petition, Lowenthal said that "all the little ways in which a federal judge can make life difficult seem to me were used in that court."

The professor, volunteer lawyer for the registration workers testified he had to take the order for their release to the Gadsden County sheriff because Carswell refused to permit his court marshal to serve it.

Lowenthal also said Carswell, instead of hearing the case in federal court, ordered it sent back to Gadsden County for trial. He said Carswell refused to grant a stay of his order, pending an appeal, but was reversed on this by the 5th Court of Appeals.

Also testifying in opposition were Duke University law school professor William Van Alystyne and an assistant professor of politics and public affairs at Princeton University, Gary Orfield.

But Yale law school professor James W. Moore urged confirmation. He called Carswell a fine jurist and a man of scholarly attainments who had been instrumental in establishing a law school at the University of Flor-

Honduras, El Salvador At It Again

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hostilities broke out again between Honduras and El Salvador Thursday. Each claimed the other started the shooting. The two governments suspended peace talks in Costa Rica at which they had been trying to ease the aftermath of their 100-hour war last July.

Honduras said a "considerable number" of dead Salvadoreans were left in Honduran territory. El Salvador's defense minister said he was waiting for casualty reports from the front.

El Salvador, smallest Spanish-speaking nation in the Western Hemisphere, claimed Honduran planes violated Salvadorean air space and then Honduran troops and armed civilians crossed the poorly defined border. El Salvador said its troops repulsed the invaders after a three-hour battle.

Honduras said the first attack was made by 100 Salvadorean ground troops, around dawn, and five hours later Salvadorean planes bombed two villages. The Honduran Foreign Ministry said that after a battle of several hours, the Salvadorean troops "were defeated, leaving behind a considerable number of guardsmen dead in Honduran territory."

Armed conflict along the border has been common since July, but Thursday's appeared to be the most serious since a cease-fire was declared on July 18.

At least 2,000 persons were killed in the war last summer, and Honduras closed the Pan American Highway, the lifeline of Central American commerce. Diplomats of other Central American countries had hoped that the peace talks in Costa Rica would improve the situation.

The two countries have a long history of economic, social and territorial disputes, stemming in large part from the fact that Honduras has five times the land and half the population of El Salvador.

Hardline Arrival In Paris

PARIS (UPI)—One of North Vietnam's top diplomats returned to the peace talks today from nearly a year in Hanoi and accused President Nixon of wanting to step up the fighting in Vietnam.

Le Duc Tho's hardline arrival statements belied reports that he had brought with him proposals to try to break the conference deadlock.

"President Nixon must decide whether he wants war or peace," Tho said. "If he wants to put pressure on us, he will never succeed and in this respect, we shall make no concessions."

"We are sure of winning," he said.

Tho, the No. 7-ranked member of the Communist party politburo in North Vietnam, is supervisor of the North Vietnam delegation in Paris. But he does not attend the meetings.

Tho said North Vietnam "is ready for serious negotiations" but added that "following the Jan. 28 U.S. Air Force bombing of North Vietnam—the strongest in many months—one must conclude that Nixon wants to step up the war."

Tho arrived from Hanoi by way of Peking and Moscow, where he discussed the Vietnam War with Soviet and Communist Chinese officials.

Israel Answers A Buzzing With Sonic Booms

By United Press International

Israel said its warplanes rocked five Syrian cities, including Damascus, with sonic booms early today in response to the buzzing of its port at Haifa by a Syrian MIG Thursday.

The jets penetrated as far as 230 miles into the Arab nation in flights just after midnight "without encountering active Syrian resistance," the announcement said. They returned safely.

A Syrian communique from Damascus said one Israeli jet flew over "some" cities, shattering a number of windows.

Late Thursday, an Israeli jet had flown a similar mission over Damascus as an immediate response to the MIG flight over Haifa, the first hostile Arab penetration of Israeli air space since the 1967 war.

The MIG made one low-level pass over Haifa, on the Mediterranean, after approaching from the sea under Israeli radar. Hundreds of windows were shattered and Israeli interceptors scrambled to the scene too late.

This new aspect of the Middle East war of nerves coincided with a Cairo newspaper editor's warning to Egyptians that Israeli raids into the Cairo heartland are "only the beginning."

Mohammed Hassanein Haikal, in his weekly column in the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram, said Israel might attempt now to stage commando raids into Cairo's suburbs.

An Egyptian military spokesman said one civilian was killed and 11 were wounded in Israel's air attack Thursday against Port Suez on the Suez Canal.

Agreement Reached in GE Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The General Electric Co. and two unions leading a 95-day strike have reached tentative agreement on a new contract. A presidential mediator predicted 10 other unions joining the strike would accept similar terms.

But it will be a week to 10 days before all 133,000 strikers return to work, federal mediator J. Curtis Counts said Wednesday night as he announced the settlement.

Negotiators for GE, the nation's fourth largest industrial corporation, and the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers and the independent United Electrical Workers declined to discuss terms of the settlement until a memorandum of agreement was signed today. The pact must be ratified by union members.

Sources close to the negotiations said the agreement provided a pay increase of more than 80 cents an hour over 40 months. The unions had sought a 99-cent-an-hour increase over 30 months.

It was learned that the pact also included a cost-of-living clause.

"It is my expectation that what comes out of these negotiations will be a pattern" for settlements with the other 10 unions, Counts told a news conference.

Asked if he thought President Nixon would view the settlement as inflationary, Counts said it was his guess that Nixon would not be unhappy. Whether it is inflationary will be left "to the economists to figure out," he said.

The strike began Oct. 26 and crippled production at 135 GE plants in 133 cities around the nation. Workers lost more than $200 million in wages and the AFL-CIO called for a nationwide boycott of GE products.

The full negotiating committee of the IUE meets today to vote on the settlement. After that it must come up for approval before the 60-member conference board and the 88,500 GE employes in the union.

The UE board will also review the pact before 16,000 GE workers vote on it.

The current average hourly wage for GE's 310,000 domestic employes is $3.25 plus premiums for special skills.

Probing Burglary At Sears

KINGSTON

Burglars pried their way into the rear of Sears Roebuck and Co. department store at the Kingston Shopping Plaza sometime before midnight Thursday and made a getaway with furs and other merchandise valued at thousands of dollars.

Detective Lieut. Charles McCullough who directed an investigation with officers in his department, said detectives on night patrol making a routine check of stores in uptown Kingston, discovered a gate leading to the store's garden center was open.

Subsequently the officers found a door leading from the garden equipment area to the main store had been pried open. The detectives also noted that entry had been made and merchandise had been removed from the floor.

An inventory was started immediately by store officials to determine the extent of loot.

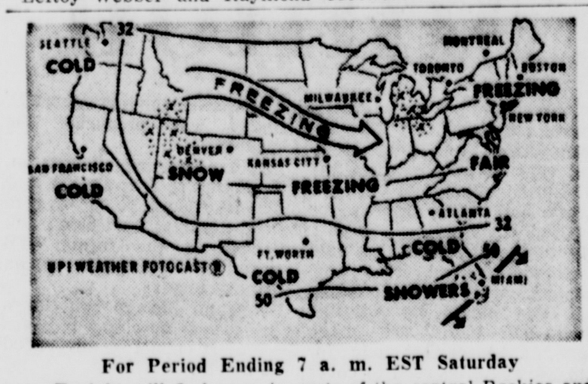

Meanwhile, McCullough said preliminary examination in the store indicated that a quantity of furs with an approximate value of $5,200 might have been carted away by the thieves. The lieutenant also noted that the loot might have included a quantity of watches and other jewelry, hunting knives, television sets and radios.

The exact amount of merchandise stolen and its value will be determined after inventory.

The break was the second major burglary in the uptown plaza within four months. On the night of Oct. 1 two men were caught at gunpoint as they looted Rudolph's Jewelry Store.

Town Board, Businessmen

Cooperation in Ulster

TOWN OF ULSTER

A spirit of cooperation was offered by Ulster Town Board to the Ulster Business Men's Association and a lengthy discussion was held on the need for a post office in the township at the recent meeting of the group.

Carmine Sabino, newly elected supervisor; Councilman Anthony Cicoria and Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis attended the session and pledged support of the Town Board in any of the association's enterprises.

Association President George Kirk named Harold Macholdt, one of the board members to serve in liaison with the Town Board.

In the discussions on the need for a post office, it was noted that there is a density of population in the area from the Kingston City line to the Saugerties township; the large numbers entering and leaving the town each day for employment; the highly concentrated area of business firms along Albany Avenue. All these were cited as reasons to explore the possibility of better and more efficient postal service.

Secretary Bette Maxon was authorized to send a communication to Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., advising him of the group's feelings and request him to institute an immediate study of the matter.

Plans were formulated for a dinner to be held in March. Assisting the president on the committee will be Virginia Baltz, Murray Turca, Mrs. Norma Pizik, treasurer and Sal Castiglione.

Castiglione presented a report filed with the State Conservation Department noting points of interest in the Town of Ulster for boating enthusiasts.

Joseph Cornelskie is vice president of the association and directors in addition to Turca and Macholdt include Howard Fox and Robert Sudlow.

Pattern Aide Sees Impact on Area From Macy's Center in Fishkill

FISHKILL

The $25 million R. H. Macy regional shopping center slated for construction at Fishkill in 1971 is expected to have an impact on the shopping patterns of Ulster County residents as well as other shoppers in the region.

This was the estimate of Arthur E. Weintraub, associate director of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress in a talk this week at a dinner meeting of Fishkill Rotary Club held at Wappingers Falls.

He noted public and private leaders need to move now to integrate this project into an overall development strategy for southern Dutchess to include new industry, housing, community facilities and transportation improvements.

The new shopping center will be situated near the intersection of Routes 84 and 9, slightly in excess of 35 miles from Kingston.

The 70-store complex will be among the largest regional shopping centers in the New York metropolitan area when fully developed to its estimated 1.2 million square feet of leasable retail floor space, the speaker said. By comparison, Roosevelt Field on Long Island is about 1.5 million; Garden State at Paramus 1.3 million and Cross County, Yonkers 1.2 million square feet.

Completion is scheduled for 1973 or earlier depending on state planning of new highway access.

The new center is expected to employ eventually several thousands and will probably attract shoppers from as far away as Middletown, Danbury, Kingston and Peekskill, Weintraub said.

High Yield — High Risk

Q—About two years ago I acquired Ling-Temco-Vought 5's of 1988 at 66. The price has dropped to 40 where the yield is 12.5%. I feel I should make a move—either dispose of my bonds if they are unsafe or buy more if they are reasonably reliable. Safety is important at my age. —C. H.

A—This 20-year subordinated debenture carries a B-rating — speculative. The excessive yield available results not only from an unduly depressed bond market but from a number of internal difficulties.

LTV, a conglomerate, grew at a fast pace through mergers until 1968 when a sharp drop in earnings was recorded. Further erosion in 1969 resulted from operating deficits in two divisions and lower earnings in three others. Sale of investments produced additional losses equal to $2.98 a share. The Justice Department's antitrust litigation over the merger of Jones & Laughlin promises to be lengthy. Moreover, interest charges coincident with LTV's $1.5 billion long-term debt create a substantial annual burden. Although these bonds are highly speculative the prospect of the company defaulting on an interest payment appears remote.

Q—I own 1,000 shares of McCormick & Co. I am 72 and need more income. Should I sell and reinvest?—B. B.

A—McCormick's long-standing growth record was temporarily interrupted in fiscal 1969 when earnings made no headway in spite of a 14% gain in sales. Sell 500 shares; by liquidating your entire position you could incur a needless tax liability. High yields with growth — contingent on an easing of credit — are available in the utility sector. Three suitable issues which yield an average 5.9% are: Arizona Public Service, Central Maine Power and Puget Sound Power & Light.

• • •

Q—Should I invest my savings in bonds? Are they safe? Is there a fee involved?—W. S.

A—Not more than $10,000 of your savings should be invested. AAA or AA-rated bonds are virtually free of risk if held to maturity. The commission for transactions is generally $5 per bond but this can vary.

New Comet

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Two Japanese astronomers have discovered the first new comet of 1970, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory reported Thursday.

The comet, named Daido-Fujikawa, was sighted Tuesday.

It marked the first comet sighting for Daido and fourth for Fujikawa, whose name was given to one other comet.

The comet, which is without a tail and 10 times fainter than can be seen by the eye, is in the constellation Aquila in the eastern sky just before sunrise.

EX-TAX CHIEF ARRESTED—Former New York Ctiy Tax Commission chief Michael Freyberg was arrested and indicted on charges of first degree perjury. District Attorney Frank Hogan said Freyberg is charged with falsely denying that he took a $5,500 bribe, had approached indicted ex-city water commissioner James L. Marcus as part of a bribe plot, and had approached real estate operator Ralph Elyacher about bribes. (UPI TELEPHOTO.

ida free of racial discrimination.

And the president of the Florida bar association, Mark Hulsey Jr., of Jacksonville, testified that Carswell possesses the integrity and judicial competence for the high court.

Van Alystyne testified that in examining Carswell's decisions in civil rights cases he found no reassurance to offset a white supremacy speech the nominee made as a candidate for the Georgia legislature 22 years ago.

He also said there was nothing in Carswell's handling of cases generally "to indicate that he could serve with distinction on the Supreme Court."

"A damning piece of testimony, from one senator's standpoint," Bayh commented, after noting Van Alystyne had testified last year in support of the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C., for the Supreme Court post. Van Alystyne had told senators that, although he disagreed with some of Haynsworth's decisions in civil rights cases, Haynsworth was an able and conscientious judge. The Senate rejected Haynsworth 55-45 last November.

Orfield told the committee President Nixon "has succeeded in the difficult task of finding a Southern federal judge whose civil rights decisions are even worse than those of the nominee so decisively rejected in November."

"The President has selected an obscure judge who has made no visible contribution to the development of the law and whose record is distinguished only by his persistent refusal to make the law an effective shield for black people claiming elemental rights," Orfield said.

Orfield also said Carswell's white supremacy speech in 1948 "reflected exactly the kind of irresponsible political leadership which has made the post-war racial transition in the South so agonizing and so protracted."

The only remaining witnesses listed by Eastland are Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.; Joseph L. Rauh Jr., counsel of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, and Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Earlier Thursday, the committee heard Rep. Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, and author Betty Friedan say the nomination should be rejected because of Carswell's attitude toward sex discrimination. They pointed to his vote last October rejecting a request for reconsideration of a woman's claim she was denied a job because she had small children. Rep. Mink also said she could not overlook the 1948 white supremacy speech.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices opened mixed today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

President Nixon's budget message as reported in some places apparently contains no surprises for investors and little to spur the market. But observers said the market may be ready for a technical rebound in view of the depressed level of many quality issues.

Shortly after the opening the UPI market wide indicator was off 0.01 per cent. Declines led advances, 145 to 138. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials was up about 2 points.

In the oils Gulf held steady at 25¾ on a block of 11,600. Texaco gained ⅛ to 26⅜, and Mobil ⅛ to 38. California Standard lost ¼ to 46¼. Occidental was up ⅜ to 20⅜ on a block of 19,500 shares.

Teachers Set For Feb. 11 Vote In Ellenville

The vote follows a recent meeting between the school and both associations in the Albany office of the Public Employees Relations Board, overseers of the Taylor Law, to discuss the two groups' claims that they are the official agents.

County To Receive Petitions

KINGSTON

Former Hurley Supervisor Robert Schneller will submit petitions with more than 900 signatures of persons opposing the proposed Hurley Mountain Airport to the Feb. 5 meeting of the Ulster County Legislature. He is scheduled to make the presentation and an address in which he will question not only the location of the proposed airport but the "need" for the facility as well.

Schneller, who will appear at 4 p.m. with the petitions, has been among the prime movers in the growing organization of residents who oppose the project. He and Robert Steuding of High Falls have presented the case against the airport to various civic groups and in the news media on numerous occasions.

Another speaker scheduled to come before the Legislature is Dr. Vernon B. Link who is resigning his post Feb. 1 to accept a similar position in Dutchess County.

The County Legislature meeting is being held the first instead of the second Thursday of the month due to the Lincoln Birthday holiday.

Counsel Named For Duo

KINGSTON

Counsel was assigned for two young men accused of first degree robbery when they appeared Thursday before City Judge Hubert A. Richter and continued a plea of innocent.

Richard Raphael, 21, and Richard Rhodes, 20, who gave their address to police as 705 Broadway, were taken into custody Monday night by detectives and accused of robbing Joseph Di Bella at Joe's Submarine Sandwich Shop at 589 Broadway.

Judge Richter assigned Attorney Louis Klein as counsel for Raphael and Marshall Lipton, attorney for Rhodes. Both men were remanded to the county jail without bail. Detectives Floyd Krom and Kenneth Radel arrested the accused men in less than 10 minutes after the reported holdup.

In another case before Judge Richter yesterday, 48-year-old Warren Brown of 20 West Union Street, pleaded guilty to possessing gambling records. He paid a $100 fine. Detectives booked Brown Wednesday on a warrant. He was accused of possessing numbers' slips.

Rhinebeck Pays Homage

RHINEBECK

The Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce recommended that each business in the town close for approximately one hour today, if possible, during the funeral of the late Benson R. Frost.

Mr. Frost died Wednesday, one of Rhinebeck's prominent citizens. The funeral was scheduled at 2 p.m.

Town Supervisor William Allen and Village Mayor Peter Sipperley proclaimed today an official "day of mourning."

The Chamber held its regular monthly meeting Thursday evening, with Thomas Logan, senior account executive of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, and Smith, Inc., guest speaker.

Logan's theme was "The Climate of Investment," and touched upon his observations on a national and local scale.

The Board of Directors chose a vice president to succeed the late Dr. P. T. Chin, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident in December.

John E. Ackerman II was elected to fill the unexpired term. Marcia Steitz was made secretary, and Donald Dapson was named to fill the vacancy.

Note Changes In Saugerties Planning Board

SAUGERTIES

In a report of the Saugerties Planning Board elections in Thursday's Freeman, noting Irving R. Oltman as chairman, two lines were inadvertently dropped, omitting the name of the newly elected secretary.

Roy Almquist of Barclay Heights, who is employed in industrial relations at Ferroxcube Corp., Saugerties, was named vice chairman.

Robert Allen of West Camp, who is with IBM, Kingston was elected secretary, filling the post held by Oltmann for the past two years.

Opens Office

Richard Kahil of the Rainbow Lodge on Route 212 at Mt. Tremper has opened a real estate office at his home. Kahil will represent the Shatemuck Realty Company of Wall Street, Kingston.

GI Gets Hearing On Feb. 4

FORT BRAGG, N.C.

A 20-year-old Highland man and another soldier stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C. will be given a hearing in district court in Fayetteville, N.C., on Feb. 4 on charges of possession and transportation of an estimated $12,000 worth of LSD, according to the UPI.

Thomas Rizzo of Highland, and Allen P. Mazzerolla, 20, of Portland, Maine, were arrested by narcotics agents in Fayetteville Wednesday night. They were held in leu of bond, which was set at $5,000 for Rizzo and $10,000 for Mazzerolla.

Rizzo's car was impounded by authorities, who said they confiscated several dozen sheets of typing paper, each containing 50 drops of LSD.

Drug Cases In Ulster, Dutchess

TOWN OF ULSTER

Two New England young men were arrested Thursday by Kingston State Police on narcotics charges. In another drug case Rhinebeck troopers cited a 22-year-old Red Hook man for possessing marijuana.

Trooper J. C. Mikesh was on routine patrol yesterday afternoon when he stopped a Rhode Island registered car on Route 28 at the traffic circle. After questioning the driver, Richard F. Bliss, 22, of Providence, the trooper summoned the man for unlicensed operation.

Subsequent investigation disclosed Bliss and a friend, James M. Donovan, 23, of Marblehead, Mass., were in possession of 38 ounces of marijuana and a quantity of LSD tablets and capsules and mescuiane powder.

Mikesh booked Bliss and Donovan on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs third degree, a felony, and criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree, a misdemeanor. Both men were arraigned before Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis, who adjourned hearing until Feb. 3 after the defendants pleaded innocent. In lieu of $500 bail each the men were committed to the county jail.

In the Dutchess county case, Troopers R. H. Reichelt and J. L. Schmidt of Rhinebeck, arrested 22-year-old Kenneth Cole of 23 Garden Street, Red Hook. They accused him of having in his possession more than an ounce of marijuana and a pipe adapted for the use of the drugs.

Cole pleaded guilty to possessing the pipe, a misdemeanor. He paid a $15 fine. The defendant was released in $1,000 bail on a felony charge of criminal possession of dangerous drugs third degree.

Town Justice George Harrington referred the case to the grand jury.

Police Sgt., Clerk Guilty In Coin Thefts

HUDSON, N.Y. (UPI) — A police sergeant and the city court clerk were arrested Thursday and charged with petty larceny in connection with the pilfering of parking violation payments.

They were Sgt. William Spanburgh, 55, of Hudson and Carolyn Hotaling, 22, of Hollowville, police said. Both pleaded guilty to the charge before Columbia County Judge William Christiana and were ordered to make restitution.

Spanburgh — a 25 year veteran of the Hudson force —resigned after the arraignment. Mrs. Hotaling left her job.

Police said Spanburgh kept for personal use $290 collected and Mrs. Hotaling kept $972. The violations took place between January and October of last year and were investigated by the State Department of Audit and Control.

Ice Skating Rinks Closed

KINGSTON

City recreation superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III said today that the three ice skating rinks in Kingston would be closed for the weekend unless "our area experiences a severe change in the weather in the very near future."

Murphy said, "The recent thaw forced the closing of the rinks on Tuesday and they will remain closed until at least Sunday, if not longer. The extended weather forecast indicates we will experience above freezing temperatures through Saturday with cloder air moving in on Sunday."

Recreation officials request that people stay off the skating areas since the liners at the Stadium and Loughran Park are vulnerable at this time. As soon as it is possible to reopen the rinks the public will be notified through the press and radio.

Gas Versus Gasoline

Government action against pollution is usually translated as the commitment of regulatory authority available to Washington, and the state capitals, to the defense of the environment.

But government has other powers—economic and even that of a good example—which also may be some significance in furthering the cause. Both would seem to be involved in a small but promising way in the recently reported experiment by the General Services Administration.

The GSA converted 12 of its fleet of some 51,000 U.S. government cars from gasoline to natural gas. In a relatively simple and inexpensive ($340 per car) procedure, each was equipped with a tank holding natural gas under pressure. The fuel supply was sufficient to cover up to 80 miles.

Initial results would appear to be more than encouring. The natural-gas powered cars produced 90 per cent less polluting than conventional vehicles. Furthermore, a comparison test showed 50 per cent less fuel consumption.

The GSA is so encouraged, in fact, that it is going beyond experiment to practical application. It plans to convert another 70 cars for routine use at National Aeronautical and Space Administration facilities.

Seventy virtually pollution-free vehicles, of course, count for nothing against the more than 100 million cars and trucks in this country presently spewing their tons of contaminants into the atmosphere. And the 80-mile range is obviously a severely limiting factor to widespread use in a nation of continental dimensions.

It would, however, be adequate for most city driving. And it is precisely in the cities where air pollution has reached the most disastrous stage and where autos are the most significant contributors. It may not be entirely day-dreaming, therefore, to consider possibilities in an early practical use of the natural-gas car, even at this early stage of development, in pollution-burdened urban areas while leaving the less-threatened open highways to conventional vehicles.

In any event, whether the natural-gas experiment leads to something more or eventually succumbs to technological obstacles and declining enthusiasm as, apparently, have its predecessors, steam and electricity, it is still to be welcomed for its own sake as a sign that man's ingenuity is still at work on the pollution problem.

And the very fact that in this case it happens to be governmental ingenuity at work could prove to be particularly beneficial. The GSA example could be a strong spur to additional research, experimentation and interest, not least among the auto manufacturers. There aren't, after all, any other customers in the market for 50,000-plus cars. What the government wants in its vehicles, as has been demonstrated with safety modifications in recent years, it usually gets, and with a very good chance of it being passed on to the public.

Hopefully, ingenuity will produce practical answers before the name of the game changes to desperation.

Pussycat Power

If ultramilitant women's organizations like WITCH (Women's International Conspiracy From Hell) or SCUM (Society to Cut Up Men) are doomed to failure in their efforts to overthrow this man's world, it's not because males control all the power.

It's simply that most gals aren't mad at men, or that outraged at having been born women.

Already a counter organization called the Pussycat League has been launched because "the shenanigans or techniques of militant women were giving other women—who believe in femininity—a bad name," says the league's founder Jeannie Sakol, a New York writer.

Don't get the Pussycats wrong. They are not disposable love objects of the Playboy bunny type nor "pea-brained housewives." And they share the same basic causes as the militant feminists—day-care centers for working mothers, repeal of abortion laws and equal pay for equal work.

But they don't believe in shouting about it or burning their bras over it (an item invented by a woman by the way, to fill, or be filled by, a real need).

They do believe in the use of affection in the battle between the sexes, like rubbing a man's back when he comes home tired. Their slogans reflect this attitude: "Men are our friends, not our enemies." "Militants make noise; we make love." "The lamb chop is mightier than the karate chop."

"It all may sound a little silly or mildly superficial," says Miss Sakol, "but we're starting some waves, and are making people laugh and are serious in our talent. What more could you ask? Humor is missing in dissent today. Because you smile it doesn't mean you're less serious."

All power—well, a little bit, anyway—to the Pussycats.

Gov. Marvin Mandel's pledge not to seek new taxes for Maryland has revived interest in a "painless tax", namely a public lottery for educational funds. Admitting that a lottery is not sound economy, but mighty good politics, some legislators see a chance of lifting the state's 119-year-old constitutional ban on public lotteries.

No Mirage!

David Lawrence Says
Many Things Are Learned From HEW Bill Handling

WASHINGTON — President Nixon had his way, but the whole controversy about the veto of the education bill could readily have been avoided when the legislation was written originally several months ago. The President, however, did get a "vote of confidence" from the House of Representatives, with a margin of about 40 votes more than was necessary to sustain his veto.

Now all the House of Representatives has to do is revise the bill so that the amount of money to be spent in schools in "federally impacted areas" will be discretionary with the President. He will be able to make an economy involving a few hundred million dollars, and yet be able to allay the fears of those states which have heavy school enrollments of children of servicemen and federal employees that they will not get sufficient funds to provide for educational needs. The President, in his message to Congress, said that the best solution would be for Congress to leave it to the executive branch to exercise discretion in spending the funds, and that flexibility should be provided, just as was done for fiscal years 1968 and 1969. He added:

"Until we come to an agreement on a basic reform of this program, I believe we should work out a temporary solution which involves full funding for children whose parents live and work on federal installations and partial funding for children whose parents do not live on federal installations. In addition, I favor a specific 'no hardship clause' which will guarantee that no school district will, as a result of these changes in the impacted school aid program, have a school budget less than 95 per cent of what it had in 1969."

Members of the House recognized that, in changing their votes in support of the President's veto, nothing serious would happen to them. Of the 86 Republicans who had voted to pass the bill, 61 switched their positions and voted against it on Wednesday. Since the House sustained the veto, it was not necessary for the Senators to undergo the embarrassment of voting on the bill again.

Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon, Democrat of Texas, who was a leader in the effort to pass the bill over the President's veto, said that the whole measure should have been enacted seven months ago — in fact, before July 1, when the present fiscal year started.

Certainly there are things to be learned from the way the whole educational measure has been handled, and perhaps the next time earlier consideration will be given to such bills. As it turns out, the fears of many members that education appropriations would be materially curtailed are not going to be borne out.

It was an important test for President Nixon. Once he took a stand and recorded his veto, it was highly important that he should win the support of at least one house of Congress. His victory in the House of Representatives was overwhelming, and his aides certainly did a good job in lining up the final vote to sustain the veto. The President got the benefit of an almost solid vote of the Republican members as well as a number of Southern Democrats who voted with them.

It is not clear yet exactly how much money will be spent for impacted-area assistance this year. The vetoed bill carried about 600 million dollars to finance all kinds of "federally impacted areas" programs. This aid in 1969 went to 4,565 of the nation's 19,222 school districts, and affects 384 of the country's 435 congressional districts. The President's compromise offer was to add 238 million dollars to his budgeted figure. So it would appear that the amount saved is roughly 362 million dollars. The compromise offer did the trick, and members who changed their vote were able to say that the President had met the situation fairly by his willingness to make payments of not less than 50 per cent, together with a "no hardship clause" to cover special situations.

On the whole, the House members who did switch their votes had a good alibi. They could tell their constituents they were reluctant to be put on record as in any way helping the trend toward inflation, and that, at the same time, they were impressed by the President's desire to take care of the needs of schools in federally-impacted areas in a substantial way. But longtime observers of the Capital scene were saying that the whole controversy could have been made unnecessary by conferences held at the proper time when the bill was first presented to the Congressional committees. Maybe a lesson has been learned.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Punchy pugs don't live long. The silence kills them. Booze and broads degrade them and they die in hospital emergency rooms with big chests and knotted muscles. Joe Sherman was never punchy. He fought early, quit early and, in a few weeks, he will celebrate his 81st birthday.

He has small blue eyes, a big busted nose, a broken left hand and nail polish. A white flame of hair graces his head and he talks hoarsely from old hooks to the chin which landed on his throat. Joe Sherman has had at least three names and was, as the Baltimore Police Department announced 66 years ago, "a bad boy."

He was born Itzak Coltenec in Irkutsk, Siberia, in 1889. The old man died young, and Joe's mother married a kosher butcher, Isaak Goldberg. They came to America with the baby. The step-father, a frugal man, earned $3 a week in the land of the free, and paid a buck and a half rent.

The boy was 14 when he was placed in St. Mary's Industrial Home, for hopping freight trains. Joe insisted on St. Mary's because his buddies were there. "They'll kill him!" his mother screamed.

They nearly did. The brothers of Xavier, who permitted Joe to study the Old Testament, even at Mass, treated him fairly. But the Christian incorrigibles called him "Jew!" "Sheeny!" "Christ killer!" and the kid asked Brother Matthew what could be done about it.

"Son," he said gently, "can you handle yourself?" Sherman nodded. "That's all I wanted to hear," he said. In the school yard, the bad boy set an institutional record — he flattened seven boys with seven punches. Two classes behind Joe was a fat kid named George Herman Ruth. They became friends.

This was his first professional fight. There was no stake. The customers threw coins into the ring. Joe Sherman found it difficult to pick them up with boxing gloves. He learned to chew the laces off.

He was always a lightweight, fighting Benny Leonard's castoffs, but the biggest purse Sherman got was $185 for 10 rounds in Cincinnati. A man, he figured, cannot get rich even if he never lost a fight.

Prohibition was just beginning to tarnish the nation's honor when Joe went to Chicago and got a respectable job as a cigar store bookie. He married a blonde named Maxine. Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, staked the couple to a $2,200 wedding reception at the Congress Hotel.

Nobody staked him to the divorce. "I quit you and cigarettes at the same time," he said to Maxie. Later, he was living at the Croydon Hotel when he passed through the bar and watched a bartender sneak $5 from a pile of bills before two chatting ladies.

Sherman came close to breaking the bartender's hand. "Put that fin and haddie back!" he roared. A blonde girl thanked him. The bad boy smirked. "It's okay, lady," he said. "Stay out of these joints. If you feel like getting married, call Joe Sherman at the Croydon."

The girl was Catherine McHugh, a beauty contest winner from Brockton, Massachusetts. Joe didn't seem to be surprised when she phoned him six months later and reminded him of what he had said. "Come on out," Joe shouted into the phone. "A promise is a promise."

They were married by a justice of the peace in Crown Point, Indiana. He opened the Downbeat Room and used to stand in the center of Randolph Street shouting: "Hoy! Hoy! Action, Jackson! The trail of the quail — the Downbeat Room." He was still steering suckers.

Joe Sherman never sold The Downbeat. He closed it and walked out with a fortune. The bad boy had made good. He took his Catholic bride to Miami Beach. Before he left, Joe bought two Jewel Tea Stores in Chicago. He is almost 81; she is 66; they bask in eternal sunshine.

He isn't punchy. He quit clipping customers to clip bonds...

Jack Anderson Says
Daddario Failed to Check Record of Cosa Nostra Hood

WASHINGTON — Connecticut's intense Congressman Emilio Daddario was duped into submitting a bill in the 1960s to keep one of New England's most notorious hoodlums from being deported. The story has been buried for nine years in records that have now come to light.

Daddario, as soon as he found out he had been misled, withdrew the bill from the House Judiciary Committee where it was under consideration. But the mobster's name, Philip Barrese, remains in old Congressional records to haunt the able Connecticut Democrat during his present boom for higher political office.

Daddario has been mentioned a challenger for discredited Tom Dodd's Senate seat. Or, if he prefers, he would be a formidable contender for the governorship.

In hindsight, it is easy to see that Daddario, then only two years in Congress, should have made a telephone call to the Justice Department to check out Barrese. Instead, he listened to political cronies.

The Daddario bill was born in the office of Hartford City Treasurer John "Bud" Mahon, now in his ninth term, and a political sage even in 1960. Morris "Mushky" Salow, a fight promoter and a friend of Mahon's, appeared in the office with a slight, emaciated man in tow.

The pathetic little man spoke broken English, wheezed from emphysema and was suffering from arteriosclerosis and an enlarged spleen. He was Barrese.

"Salow just told me he was a friend," Mahon recalled. "I asked them what the problem was. Barrese said, 'I dont know why they're, deporting me.'"

Three-Page Record

But the obsequious Italian immigrant, in fact, had a criminal record three pages long, replete with gambling and bootlegging convictions, plus charges of rape and attempted robbery going back to 1929.

Treasury Department files show Barrese was a "principal suspect in an international narcotics ring." His bona fides of crime are faultless, the records show. They link him to such notorious Cosa Nostra characters as Carmine Galante, John "Big John" Ormento and John "Johnny Roberts" Robilotto. The latter, a victim of a Brooklyn gangland murder, had been a former partner of Joe Valachi and a top lieutenant to Carlo Gambino.

At the time that Barrese came to see the Hartford City Treasurer, he was under deportation order in a bootleg and tax case. Mahon insists he did not know about this when he asked Daddario to sponsor the bill.

Mahon also took Barrese and Salow to see another old friend, George Silvester, who was Daddario's campaign treasurer in both the 1958 and 1960 campaigns. Silvester remembers the meeting well.

"Mushky told me about this horrible injustice. It had to do with a liquor violation. As a rather routine thing, I called up Daddario's office," Silvester told my associate, Leslie Whitten. Silvester said he had no idea of Barrese's prominence in the crime world. He added that Barrese is now dead.

As for Salow, "He's the sort of guy that if you're in a restaurant and he sends a drink to you and your wife, you tell the waiter 'No, thanks.' But I didn't know it then," said Silvester.

Salow has an unlisted telephone number and could not be reached.

Failed to Check

Daddario, without checking, put in a bill March 7, 1961, which would have given Barrese permanent alien residence and would have deducted one number from the Italian immigration quota.

The Immigration Service, which had been busily working to kick out the mobster, informed the Judiciary Committee about Barrese's sordid past. As soon as Daddario got the word, he withdrew the bill on Oct. 18, 1961.

While Barrese's friends were working to keep him in the country, as it happened, the wheels of justice were grinding at Federal District Court in Hartford. On March 30, 1962, a permanent injunction was ordered blocking Barrese's deportation on technical grounds.

Daddario spoke frankly of the long-ago mistake.

"I called up George Silvester and I raised Cain about sending that kind of case. I had no idea at all who he (Barrese) was."

This column has painstakingly read through old files and spoken with all possible parties, and can find no indication that Daddario was aware of Barrese's dark prominence.

The Congressman knew, of course, that Barrese was having immigration problems. But he said he trusted that Silvester, as an old friend and campaign aide, would not send him a bad case to sponsor. Daddario has been a useful and imaginative Congressman. But like so many others, he depended on old political cronies.

Congressmen would get in less trouble if they would screen their political favors.

Helicopter Abuse Confirmed

A former Marine combat division lieutenant has a special reason to protest the use of 32 military helicopters to ferry desk-riding generals and admirals and politicians, as revealed by this column.

Charles W. Shobe, of Sharpsburg, Md., now a school teacher, told us in a letter of his experience in Vietnam:

"A man was hit by a piece of mortar shrapnel and his eye was torn out. A 'med evac' helicopter was called for. None came. It was called for several times and still nothing. He lay in a dirty bunker for about 17 hours with no eye."

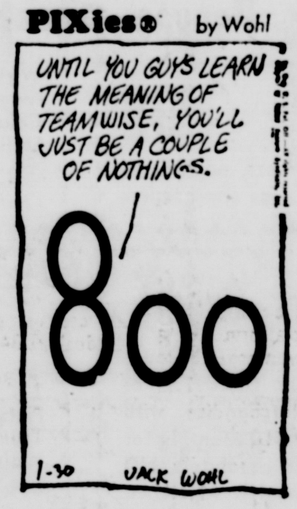

Finally, one came, not to pick up the wounded man, but pick up a prisoner. The injured GI was able to hitch a ride.

"While operating just south of Khe Sanh in June, 1968 (we) were many times limited to one 'C' ration meal and two canteens of water per day because of lack of helicopter support...at times I would have paid $50 for a gallon of ice water. Men spread their ponchos over bushes and set their helmets up to catch the dew and the little bit of rain that sometimes fell at night..."

Former leatherneck Shobe told of running low on mortar ammunition and asked:

"Why should troops in Vietnam die and live in discomfort because of lack of helicopter support when millionaire politicians and fat brass use them like the family car..."

Legitimate War on Crime Hurt by 'Repression' Tag

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The ugly word "repression" is being tossed about recklessly today, with potentially damaging impact on the fight against raging crime in this country.

As with the term "revolution," which in this age of imprecision is often equated with any change, so the word "repression" is in danger of being defined to cover legitimate combat on crime.

If this continues, a far worse gap than now exists may open up between millions of Americans already victimized by crime or fearful they may be, and deprived persons (plus their affluent and sometimes revolutionary champions) who argue that at the only reasonable action is to attack poverty and other "underlying causes."

The issue is badly tangled up with not only human misery but with notions about civil liberties, racial discriminatiion and even a heralded wider freedom (drugs are said to be liberating).

The legitimacy of concern for the deep causes of crime needs no reinforcement. But it is the mark of thinking persons to make exacting distinctions.

One that must be made, as I indicated in a prior column, is that hard drugs are not fun and games but one of the most destructive, oppressive factors in human life. Another is that, whatever its "underlying causes," crime which strikes innocents on street or in store or home puts increasingly grave limit on even the simplest free comings and goings of ordinary citizens.

It had better not be assumed that action directed urgently against such offenses is automatically "repressive" and must be set aside while we tackle the causes.

No sensible American questions the need for basic betterment. But such change is going to take years, notwithstanding the militants' clamor that it happen immediately. And you cannot ask millions of legitimately fearful Americans to accept complacently the prospect of being robbed, maimed or killed in the meantime.

The flurry over the Black Panthers symbolizes the distortion which some "concerned humanitarians" have given the problem.

No one could welcome any proven police attempt to kill Panther members. It is something else, however, to accept disputed evidence in such cases as the Chicago police raid, and transform the gun-toting, arsenal-building, crime-committing Panthers into noble fellows worthy of warm sympathy.

Their celebrated "breakfasts" for children are a cruel put-on, hot oatmeal with a side dish of indoctrinated hatred of the police and all authority, and a further serving of implanted reverence for convicted criminals or others under severe criminal indictment.

The antiwar New Mobilization Committee, with the once-sensible Southern Christian Leadership Conference, slipped into the abyss when they joined hands with the Panthers to fight "repression." Even responsible old Roy Wilkins finds himself apologizing for their arsenals.

Perhaps worse, musician Leonard Bernstein and his wife plunged far beyond their depth when they gathered 90 guests in their New York apartment for a Panther "fund-raiser."

With store bombings, deliberately set fires and killing or wounding of many policemen a fact, with Panther literature and other utterance offering the pure poison of violence and destruction, those misguided dilettantes waved their "civil liberties" concerns ostentatiously, while Mrs. Bernstein described as "poor devils" those among 21 indicted Panthers held in high bond for plotting to kill policemen and blow up certain stores and railroads.

Equally misguided are apologists for the "drug scene" who make no sharp line between lesser drugs and the killers. Find yourself a seller of heoin, be he a minor Mafia type or a cynical college student, and you have in hand a vicious oppressor in league with this society's very worst criminal elements.

Winter Is a Season of Emergencies

Winter weather brings on emergencies and brings them on pretty quickly. Some can be met and solved, at least temporarily. A few will require professional help.

In the latter case is the matter of an electrical failure. Ice, snow and high winds can pull down wires and the only thing you can do about that is wait sensibly until the utility company restores service.

Sensible waiting means staying away from the downed wire if it is near your home, posting warnings and barricades to keep others away.

Flashlights, extra dry cells and candles should be in every home. Keep them handy. Remember where they are.

Keep refrigerator and freezer doors closed. The food in them will keep from 24 to 36 hours if you do not let warm air in.

Disconnect motor-driven appliances since, when power is restored, it may be at only partial voltage. Motors that go on under this condition are subject to damage. Lamps glow dimly at partial voltage, so you will know where you stand.

Motor-driven, forced-air heating systems, oil-burner pumps and hot-water heat circulating pumps all will be affected. In the case of a gas-fired system, the furnace may go on and off anyway, since many of these have self-energizing systems. With the burner working, turn off the blower motor and remove the filter. The system then works as a gravity-fed one—not well, but good enough.

An electric pump circulates the water in a hot water system. Turn off the pump, open the flow valve on the water line and the warm water will circulate.

If you have a fireplace or a gas stove, use these for sources of heat, closing off other rooms and keeping the family in the one warm room.

If a window breaks, make temporary repairs. Large sheets of plastic stapled to the window frames are best. Make permanent repairs, then, after the wind subsides.

Gutters and downspouts jammed with ice can cause water to back up under the roof shingles as thawing occurs later on. Electric heating cables installed ahead of time avoid this problem. Meanwhile, use chemicals to thaw the ice or lay a heating cable over the ice. Start with the downspot, so the water will have some place to go. If you use chemicals, be sure to flush them out later to avoid corrosion.

Frozen water pipes should be thawed slowly. Fast thawing causes steam to form at one point, causing bursting. For this reason, and so as not to cause fire hazards, do not use a blowtorch. Heat lamps, hair dryers, heating cable, light bulbs can be pressed into service. Move the heat along the pipe. Work close to the faucet, at the opposite end from the shutoff valve. Keep the faucet open, so the water can flow as the ice melts.

Snow Damages Evergreens

Snow allowed to rest too long on evergreens and shrubs can cause damage, Dr. Edward L. Chandler, plant physiologist at Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories, said today.

"When snow piles up on evergreens, it's time to get out a broom or large brush and clear it away," he said.

Snow can turn to ice, and ice acts as a magnifying glass. It concentrates the sun's rays on needles. Scorching occurs, and brown or dead patches appear in the spring.

"A single large snowfall or ice storm can damage pyramidal forms of coniferous evergreens such as arborvitae, juniper, and yew," Dr. Chandler said. "Ice is especially injurious to supple trees such as birches. It breaks branches or bends them permanently."

He suggests three methods to prevent or lessen winter storm damage to trees:

Remove snow and ice by gently lifting branches and shaking off the accumulation with a broom or large brush. This should be done cautiously, as rough treatment will damage needles and twigs.

Starting from the base of the trunk, loosely tie rope in coil or spiral fashion around pyramidal-form evergreens. The rope, if kept on all winter, will help prevent snow and ice build up between branches.

Unless temperatures are very low, apply a stream of water from a garden hose on trees and shrubs when ice is accumulating. Tap water in winter usually is warmer than the air and will help melt ice.

New Interest in Old Apples

By GEORGE ABRAHAM.

Many home gardeners are asking why they can't get the good, old-fashioned apple way of saying that new interest is being shown in the old apples. Years ago it was common for everyone to have a planting of Snow Apples (Fameuse), Black Gilliflower, Pumpkin Sweet, "Strawberry" Apple, Esopus Spitzenberg, to name a few. These old favorites had to give way to modern varieties which must have the following attributes: (1) Productivity, (2) attractiveness, (3) ease of handling, (4) disease resistance, (5) good keeping quality, (6) dual usefulness, for dessert and processing. Most of the fine old varieties disappeared since they were only suitable for home plantings.

Public pressure is bringing these old favorites back and many nurserymen have started propagating the old fashioned varieties.

ORDERING TOMATO SEED? Still wondering which is the best tomato for the home garden? Actually, there's no one variety which is best for all conditions. If you've had poor luck, maybe it's because your soil is loaded with disease organisms (fusarium or verticillium) and that you should use disease-resistant types such as Manalucie, Homestead, Heinz 1350, Campbell 1327, or New Yorker. Supersonic is a dandy midseason hybrid to keep your eye on. We grew it last year and found it was of finest quality. It's apparent resistance to fusarium and verticillium wilts make it a more dependable variety for the home garden. You'll have a hard time trying to beat Moreton Hybrid, another fine early tomato. It produces husky vines and plenty of fruit. Glamour is a good crack-resistant tomato to try, if you've been having trouble getting crack-free fruit.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "We have a shady spot where geraniums, petunias and other flowering plants do not do well. Is there any flowering plant which will take shade?"

Ans: Try growing the Impatiens or Day plants. They take shade very well. Also, try the vinca rosea, or periwinkle. Coleus makes a fine item for the shade, as do the various begonias. Petunias, strangely, will take some shade, and we've seen red salvia (scarlet sage) blossom in semishade.

Replacements For Dead Elms

If disease has ruined your American elms or other shade treets, plant nut trees as replacements. They supply good shade and tasty, nutritious food you may share with wildlife.

The eastern black walnut is one suggestion by Laurence H. MacDaniels, professor emeritus in the department of floriculture and ornamental horticulture at the New York State Collegea of Agriculture, Cornell University.

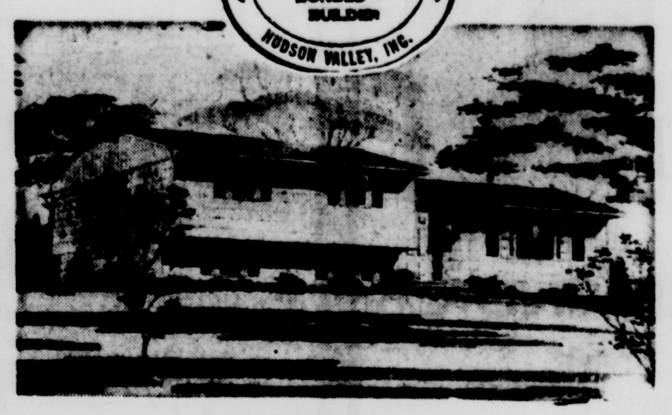

Black walnut, he says, is a very valuable nut tree and the most widely propagated variety in New York State is "Thomas." In test plots, "Thomas" has been the most satisfactory by far, MacDaniels says.

Promising varieties of northern origin that crack well are Snyder, from New York State: Wiard from Michigan and Cochrane from Minnesota. Another is Sparrow. Less winter hardy are Stambaugh and Elmer Hyers. New varieties are Browser, Victoria and Patterson.

"Because of its excellent timber, black walnut is being planted commercially as a dual purpose tree furnishing both timber and nuts," MacDaniels said.

The hardiest of northern nut trees is butternut, but it is short-lived under certain conditions due to fungal and viral diseases. Good cracking-quality butternuts named recently are Kinneyglen, Buckley, Craxezy, Johnson, Love, Sherwood and Thill.

Promising Persian walnut varieties are of Carpathian origin introduced from Poland. MacDaniels says the Persian walnut is sometimes incorrectly called English walnut. Regarded as superior varieties are Littlepage, McKinster, Metcalfe, Colby, Jacobs, Somers, Lake, Hansen, and Broadview. These have withstood low winter temperatures throughout the country. Many other Persian walnuts have been killed or hurt by severe cold.

The Way to Win

The Price of a Successful Life

Number Twelve in a Series
By MIKE ROTHENBERGER
Copyright © Dale Carnegie & Associates, Inc. 1967
All Rights Reserved

The story is told of a young man who quit his job and ran away from home because he was not willing to do as much work as his employer felt he should. He decided that he would go to a country far away where he had heard that he could find great riches without having to work hard. So he tied his scanty possessions into a bundle, threw it over his shoulder and set out on his journey. He had not gone far when he was overtaken by a fierce storm. He plodded along through the wind and the sleet and the snow until he was nearly exhausted. Then to his delight he saw a small cabin just a few hundred yards down the trail. As fast as he could he ran to the shack, forced the door open and went inside. In one corner of the room stood an old potbellied stove. He shook his fist at the stove and commanded, "Stove, give me heat and I'll give you wood." He stood and waited but he could feel no heat. And again he demanded, "Stove, give me heat and I'll give you wood," but no heat could he feel. He shouted his command for the stove to give him heat until his voice became hoarse but to no avail. He pulled his coat tightly around himself and sat down on the floor by the stove. He shivered as he waited for the stove to give him heat until he collapsed and froze because he didn't realize that he would have to give the wood before he could enjoy the heat.

One person may say, "Why is it that I am always so unlucky? Why can't I have a better job so I could earn more money and be able to afford a better car and a finer, more beautiful home? Why is it that the breaks always come to someone else?" And so often that person will keep right on asking "why" instead of doing something to improve his circumstances.

Another person takes an entirely different approach. This one says, "I am not satisfied with my present status in life. I want something better. I want a better job, with a higher income, so I can enjoy more of the finer things in this world." Then he sits down to analyze his situation, to determine what he will have to do in order to get what he wants. If it requires a better job he will determine what he must do, if anything, to qualify himself for it. When he realizes what has to be done he doesn't put if off, he immediately gets busy and does it. This is the man who will succeed. This is the man who many seem to be lucky, but his secret is seldom luck, it is usually deliberate and consistent action.

When we firmly resolve to face up to the price of a successful life, when we become willing to give the wood of constant and persistent effort, only then can we expect to enjoy the heat; only then can we begin to look forward to a richer, fuller and more rewarding life. "Such is the way to win."

The next Dale Carnegie article will appear in Monday's newspaper. The course is sponsored by The Daily Freeman.

SMOCKED BABY DRESS — Among the numerous outfits which were previewed recently in Toronto in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union Canadian Collection was a smocked baby dress. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Fashion Forecast

By JOAN DEPPA

PARIS (UPI) — Paris finally found fashions to sit up and cheer about today in both mini and mid-calf lengths.

Emmanuel Ungaro and Lanvin won the first spontaneous applause of the spring-summer collections with brilliant prints in very short and very long skirts.

Ungaro clearly preferred skirts short — at least mid-thigh — but did some of the most striking long coats in town.

Lanvin's designer, Jules-Francois Crahay, did a smart little collection of very short sports dresses but clearly loved his new "peasant" length—about 6 inches from the floor.

Ungaro's look, once sculptured like that of his former employer Courreges, was extremely soft with bloused fullness contrasted with neat but easy stitched pleats.

He did a pale, pale lilac jacket cut like a short that stopped just above the hemline of the mini-dress underneath.

Typically, the dress was printed in one of Ungaro's new prints that look like fine pencil-sketched geometry filled in intermittently with color combinations like orange, green and purple on an off-white background.

"Polka dots forever!" was the password at Lanvin, but that did not mean the sort of polka dots great-grandmother used to wear.

Crahay designed a whole range of Lanvin fabrics and scarves which combine the traditional polka dot with geometric prints inspired by the Brauhaus school of artists in Germany between the two world wars.

The lowly drawstring is back in style. So are the pajama stripes it used to go with.

How such ideas get passed from designer to designer remains a mystery, but Tuesday designers as different as Balmain and Courreges used them both — and they already had been featured in some collections Monday.

Courreges put a drawstring along the top of bikini pants on one of his striking new swim suits made out of velvet-looming synthetic.

Then he laced a bright purple yarn drawstring along the bottom of a terry-lined, white plastic-coated beach or yachting jacket lined in the same bright purple. Big white boots made out of the same plastic-coated fabric had purple yarn drawstrings to gather in their wide tops.

The coat and boots accessorized an itty-bitty bikini made of patches held in their strategic places by narrow white bands of fabric.

Courreges usually made his pajama stripes in plastic-coated black and white reminiscent of old-fashioned prison garb. Often, he used the fabric to line long skirts covering bikinis.

More typically, the stripes were a combination of wide colored stripes broken by very narrow ones and alternating with broad stripes of white or some other light color. They looked exactly like the stripes used for men's pajamas until the peacock male trend set in and men's nightwear got adventurous.

Christian Dior designer Marc Bohan came out with a uniform calf-covering hemline today.

The look was not one which will prompt many women to clean out their closets and fill it with new Dior-designed or inspired clothes.

The long droopy silk dresses, printed in polka dots, were the sort of clothes women who dress to impress other women will love. But most of the men in the audience looked bored.

The audience reaction to one after another of the outfits with hemlines hanging around the calf-bottom was tepid. Almost no applause was heard for the daytime clothes — with the exception of one trouser suit — and there was little, by comparison with recent seasons, for the evening clothes.

Most of the daytime clothes were in all the brown shades from ivory through cinnamon, havana, khaki, fawn and cooper to dark brown. It was relieved from time to time by a medium blue which Bohan calls boat-blue and by mauve.

The designer was absolutely dotty for polka dots — as are several other Paris houses. Bohan uses a navy and white polka dot shirt under a long-skirted navy suit and waist-length jacket, printed in giant polka dots which in turn are printed with tiny polka dots.

The models wore dark stockings, low shoes and almost no jewelry. Their hair was cropped short or worn in a tight chignon by day. At night the chignon was braided and another big braid wrapped round the head to frame the face.

BURNING WITH ELEGANCE is this bold combination of accessories introduced recently in Paris for spring-summer 1970 collections. The hat is by Jean-Charles Brosseau; the pearls and Swarovski's crystal spectacles by Francoise Montagne, along with yellow Tyrolean stone cigarette-holder and matching rings, no less. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

SWEDISH-BORN DESIGNER — Jorn Langberg introduced these "pioneer look" fashions with mid-calf hemlines at the London showing recently of Christian Dior's spring collection. (UPI CABLEPHOTO DIRECT FROM LONDON).

THIS BLACK AND WHITE silk leaf printed summer coat by Italian designer Forquet recalls the Dior "new look" of the 1950s. Forquet's collection, shown in Rome recently, included numerous wide belts, hemlines to the bottom of the calf and wide lapels. The dress, cut similiarly, is a somewhat smaller print design. FONTANA uses black embroidery on white in this maxi-gown for summer 1970. The gown is slit to show more of the leg than did the mini-skirt. Fontana showed his collection in Rome recently. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

New Service at Kingston Hospital

How does it feel to be a volunteer? Ask any member of The Kingston Hospital Auxiliary, and you'd get a bright and friendly reply; "Oh, it's work, but the rewards are immeasurable."

Thus the Auxiliary, not only concerned with financial support to its hospital, but emotionally conscious of the needs of the patient, has introduced a new service, which is providing occupational therapy for those who have a need for it.

Cooperating with members of the hospital staff, direct assistance, comfort and companionship to the patient, is rendered through this new service.

Through the years and continuing even today through its Good Cheer Fund, the Auxiliary provided those extra little gifts on holidays and special occasions, but realized that a direct contact with the patient was needed as well. The response to the occupational therapy volunteer has been overwhelming, and has brought great relaxation to those bed-ridden for any length of time.

Mrs. Karl Pitcock, Director of Volunteers, has reported that volunteers are now serving in the Pediatrics Department, Coronary Care Clinic, Obstetrical area, Intensive Care Unit and Medical Records Department. They also continue to staff the services such as Gift Shop, Snack Bar, Information Desk and Hospitality Cart.

How does it feel to be a volunteer? Well, part of their reward will be reaped on Saturday evening, Feb. 7, as they join other volunteers and their friends for "An Enchanted Evening," at the Governor Clinton Hotel. This traditional Ball will aid the Auxiliary, financially, to continue its many services. The public is invited to this lovely social event.

Sweet Adelines to Present Show March 7

The Colonial City chapter of Sweet Adelines will present its seond show, "Among My Souvenirs," on Saturday March 7, at the George Washington School in Kingston. Members of the chapter are busy preparing new music, costumes and stage props for their presentation of an evening of barbershop harmony.

The award-winning Ban-jos, a quartet from the Chapter, will appear in the show. Members of the quartet are Dixie Westervelt, lead; Nancy Bishopp, baritone; Barbara Bondar, tenor; and Gini Franks, bass. Dorothy Ridgeway, the group's former bass, is in England. The Ban-jos have also accepted an invitation to sing for the Cortland, N.Y. Chapter's show in Arpil, and plan to enter Regional Quartet Competition in Boston in May.

The Chorus is proud to announce that another quartet from its ranks, the Tintinabulations, will also appear in the show. Members are Gerry Attanasio, lead; Ann Kohland, tenor; Evelyn Roberts, baritone and Anne Rick, bass.

The Unlikelyhoods, a quartet from the Poughkeepsie Chapter of Society of the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, will add to the audience's enjoyment with their stunts and humor.

Advance tickets to the show are available through Mrs. Thomas Kuhns in Woodstock and Mrs. John Collins in Krumville.

Two representatives for the Chapter attended an Academy of Music on Saturday, Jan. 17 at the Thruway Hyatt House in Albany.

Evelyn Roberts, baritone of the Tintinabulations, particularly enjoyed two training sessions in listening to quartets, identifying problems and experimenting with solutions. She augmented her knowledge with a study of advance harmony.

Claudia Kuhns took instruction in arranging music and building a barbershop sound. Her studies concluded with a show production class.

Both women attended a leadership forum and participated in an advanced clinic outlining vocai problems through taped demonstrations. Also offered were a study of the basic techniques of chorus directing, choosing a song for contest, and barbershop arranging. While qualified directors, arrangers, assistant directors and judges attended special seminars, all other academy students learned nine new barbershop arrangements.

Any woman in the area who is interested in learning more about this American folk art, or who would enjoy performing in the Chorus's musical on March 7 are invited to call Mrs. James Bishop in Saugerties.

Orchestra in Progress Concert

The Orchestra in Progress (OPI) under the joint direction of Edward Simons and Richard Webb has rescheduled its winter concert for Saturday at 8 p.m. at Marlboro High School.

Mr. Simons will conduct a classical orchestra in a performance of the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 4 in G Major and the Hydn Symphony No. 104 in D Major. The Bach Concerto will feature as soloists, violinist Nancy Locke and flutists, Susan Reynolds and Jacqueline Steltz.

In the second part of the program Richard Webb will conduct a wind ensemble in Herold-Godfrey's Overture "Zampa," Holst's First Suite classics from the 17th century.

OIP was established in 1966 to serve as an amateur training orchestra for talented area musicians.

The group has worked hard since September to prepare an excellent program and invites the public to attend this concert and share the fun in this learning experience. There will be no charge for admission.

Anyone interested in attending may call either the Hudson Valley Philharmonic office of Mrs. T. R. Lawson Jr., Beechwood Circle, Wappingers Falls, for further information and directions.

Cure Power

So great is the curing power of today's "miracle medicines" that illnesses, which a short time ago meant long and costly convalescence—often in a hospital — are cured at home in days with drugs costing only a few dollars. Never before has so little money bought so much cure.

Willis Reed Now Over 9,000 Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed of the New York Knicks is over the 9,000-point barrier, but the most meaningful figures to the big center are the ones that designate seasons played.

"The 9,000 aren't significant," said Reed Thursday night after he went over that pro career total with 25 in the Knicks' 127-106 trouncing of Detroit in a National Basketball Association game.

"It's the six years," he said. "I hope I can match those."

In the only other NBA action Thursday, Phoenix upended Atlanta 111-102 and Seattle tripped San Francisco 105-101.

Kentucky trounced Pittsburgh 122-102 and Indiana edged Los Angeles 127-123 in the American Basketball Association.

Reed's 10th point, in the second quarter, was his 9,000th.

"We're playing as good a game as we were early in the season," said Reed after the Knicks won their fifth straight of 10 to 12 in opening up a six-game lead over second-place Milwaukee in the Eastern Division.

The Knicks looked devastating in the third quarter, outscoring Detroit 40-20 as Reed scored 11 points, Walt Frazier got eight of his 21 and Dick Barnett eight of his 14. Cazzie Russell came in after Bill Bradley suffered an apparent minor ankle injury early in the game and scored 18 points.

Walt Bellamy scored 22 points and Dave Bing 21 for Detroit.

Connie Hawkins tallied 15 of his 24 points in the last period as the Suns trimmed Atlanta's Western Division lead over idle Los Angeles to 1½ games. Dick Van Arsdale topped Phoenix with 31 points and Jerry Chambers, hitting his first five shots, added 22 in his 25-minute stint.

Joe Caldwell was high for the Hawks with 29.

Dick Snyder's 24 points led Seattle past San Francisco, ruining the coaching debut of Al Attles, who replaced George Lee Tuesday as the Warriors' pilot.

Snyder hit two free throws and a field goal to give the SuperSonics a 98-94 edge with four minutes remaining and they held on for their first victory in four meetings with the Warriors.

65 Gives Nick Lead

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Any time a man shoots a 65 in a golf tournament, you have to figure he's in pretty good shape.

Well, Jack Nicklaus shot a seven-under 65 in the opening round of the $150,000 Andy Williams San Diego Open Thursday but all it got him was a one stroke edge—over Britain's Tony Jacklin.

Nicklaus, the defending champ who joined Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper as golf's only millionaires for finishing second in the Crosby tourney last Sunday, was among the first away in the first round here.

Four players — Al Balding, Julius Boros, Gay Brewer and Joe Goldstrand—were another stroke back with 67s.

Gene Littler, who lost the 1969 San Diego to Nicklaus by a stroke; Bobby Nichols, Don Massengale, Bobby Lunn, Paul Moran and Terry Dill were at 68.

The 69 group, three under par, was made up of Bob Rosburg, Tommy Jacobs, George Archer, Fred Marti, Johnny Miller and Paul Harney.

Fifteen players were at 70, 15 at 71 and 21 at 72.

Casper, who started the 1970 tour by winning the Los Angeles Open, was at 71. Dale Douglass, who took the Phoenix Open, also had 71 while Bert Yancey, who won the Crosby, was at 77.

Jerry Steelsmith and PGA champ Ray Floyd had problems, though.

Steelsmith, still thinking winter rules were in effect, lifted his ball out of the canyon on the 10th hole and was disqualified.

Floyd mistakenly carried 15 clubs, one over the limit, in his bag.

By the time the discovery was made he was penalized the maximum four strokes, which put him at 75 instead of 71.

END OF THE TRAIL — Florida A&M University's head football coach Alozono (Jake) Gaither announced his retirement Thursday.

In 25 years as coach of the famed "Rattlers", Gaither's teams won 203, lost 36 and tied 4.

Gaither won't divulge his age, but he is thought to be about 65. He joined the Rattlers in 1937 as an assistant coach and took over as head coach in 1945. Removal of two brain tumors left him temporarily blind in 1942 and in recent years he has used a golf cart to maneuver the practice field since breaking a leg.

Asked for reasons for his retirement, Gaither answered, "the reason is simple. I just don't want to press my luck anymore.

It's hard to envision Coach Gaither not being on the active scene," said Dr. Benjamin Perry, president of Florida A&M. "It just doesn't make sense."

Gaither will be wearing only two caps next season — athletic director and professor of physical education. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Bluejays Jolt Aggies, 72-68

(By The Associated Press)

Creighton's young Bluejays are the latest spoilers in a bigger-they-are, harder-they-fall binge that has toppled three of the nation's top six college basketball teams on successive nights.

Sophomore John "T-Bone" Taylor canned four free throws —his only points—in the final 61 seconds to carry the Bluejays past fifth-ranked New Mexico State 72-68 Thursday night.

Wednesday night, Villanova handed No. 3 St. Bonaventure its first setback of the season, 64-62. Tuesday's victim was previously-unbeaten sixth-ranked Jacksonville, which bowed to Florida State 89-83.

Soph-studded Creighton, soaring to its sixth consecutive victory after a 5-5 getaway, avenged an earlier loss to the Aggies, with Taylor providing the margin and junior Dennis Bresnahan dropping in 18 points to key a balanced attack.

Jimmy Collins scored 22 points before fouling out with three minutes remaining for New Mexico State, 17-2, before a capacity crowd of 11,000 at Omaha, Neb.

In another reversal, Memphis State shaded Wichita State 85-81 at Memphis, ending a string of 27 consecutive losses in Missouri Valley Conference play. Drake's MVC leaders, ranked 16th nationally, downed visiting North Texas State 95-84 to go 8-0 in league play and 14-4 over-all.

Ollie Taylor's 35-point spree propelled 12th ranked Houston to an 82-69 road victory over Montana State; Utah snapped a first-place deadlock with Texas-El Paso in the Western Athletic Conference by shading the Miners 66-61 at Salt Lake City and Princeton cuffed Cornell 75-58 at Ithaca, N.Y., to remain alive in the Ivy League title race.

Memphis State's 27-17 edge from the foul line proved the difference as the Tigers broke the longest losing streak in Missouri Valley history. Don Holcomb and Jeff Frost tallied 21 and 20 points, respectively, for the winners. Greg Carney of Wichita State was the game's high point man with 29.

Gary Zeller connected on a rare four-point play with just over 2½ minutes to play, helping Drake subdue North Texas State for its 17th straight MVC triumph. Zeller scored on a driving layup and converted two free throws, awarded on a flagrant foul called against the Eagles' Joe Hamilton for spilling him on the play.

Al Williams topped the Bulldogs with 29 points and 23 rebounds. Hamilton scored 25 for the losers.

Houston's Taylor popped in 25 points in the second half, finishing 13-for-13 from the free throw line, and grabbed 16 rebounds as the Cougars staged a late spurt to boost their season mark to 14-2.

Utah, 13-4 over-all, outscrapped Texas-El Paso for a 5-0 mark in the WAC and a one-game lead over the Miners. John Hummer's 22 points helped Princeton, 10-6, boost its Ivy record to 3-2.

Duquesne, sparked by Jarrett Durham's 24 points, defeated Kentucky Wesleyan, a small college giant, 83-67 at Pittsburgh and Toledo upped its season mark to 11-4—despite two forfeit losses—by blitzing visiting Colgate with a 58-point second half burst.

Favor Porsche Cars

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) —Official qualifying for starting positions began this morning for the 24-Hours of Daytona Endurance Race and most observers were betting that one of the new Porsche prototypes would win up at the head of the field.

Porsche, fielding three of its new 5-liter, 600 horsepower 917 models for the Saturday-Sunday twice around the clock marathon, had the highest unofficial speeds in practice and appeared to have few mechanical problems.

On the other hand, some observers felt that qualifying laurels would go to one of five new Ferrari 512s, a 5-liter, 575 horsepower bomb with the biggest engine displacement ever built by the Italian marque.

The new Ferraris, however, came here with a minimum of road testing and promptly ran into transmission and overheating problems. These setbacks appeared to have been solved by Thursday and their drivers began hitting speeds well above the course record.

In any event, a new qualifying mark seemed assured. Vic Elford of England, who is co-driving one of the new Porsches with Kurt Ahrens of Germany, holds the current track-course record of 122 246 miles per hour. That speed was broken many times during practice.

The field of 69 cars was to participate in a three-hour qualifying session starting at 8 a.m. Each car was to be clocked on every lap of the 3.81 mile course, with the fastest lap determining the car's starting position.

Sandy Tops In Decade

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sandy Koufax had a one-word reaction when advised he had been named Baseball Athlete of the Decade in a special poll conducted by The Associated Press.

"Incredible," said the former Los Angeles Dodger pitcher, a hard-throwing, soft-speaking lefthander many call the greatest in the annals of baseball.

Koufak, who retired at 30 after the end of the 1966 season because of a chronic, pain-enduring arthritic condition in his pitching elbow, is a man of many attributes.

"I think it's incredible because there were guys like Mays and Mantle and Henry Aaron who were great players for 10 years or more.

"After all, my big years were not spread over a full decade. I only had four or five good years."

Sandy had best check the records. In six years of the past decade, 1961-1966, he won 129 games and lost only 47 and in his final four his won-loss history was 25-5, 19-5, 26-8 and 27-9—and those were years when the elbow was in misery.

Wolf Resigns UCCC Post

STONE RIDGE

Kenneth J. Wolf, Chairman of the Physical Education Department at Ulster County Community College, has resigned the post, effective the end of the current school year.

Wolf, who also serves as UCCC's Athletic Director, told The Daily Freeman today the resignation had been submitted some time ago.

"I have tendered my resignation regretfully, but there are several compelling personal and professional reasons for my decision," said Wolf.

"I would like to move back to the metropolitan area to complete my doctorate in the field of Administration of Physical Education in Higher Education," he added.

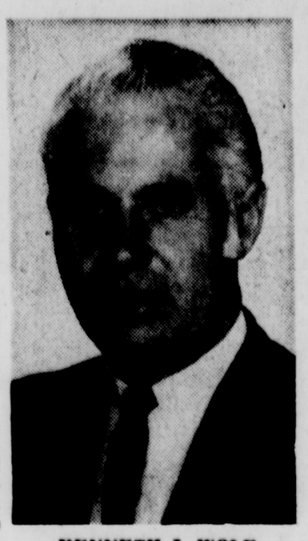

Wolf said he had received a couple of very attractive offers, dependent upon the completion of his doctoral studies. "Both schools are in the New York City area and each had made an offer I cannot refuse. It is just a question of choosing one."

Long Island Native

A native of St. Albans, Long Island, Wolf is completing his second year at UCCC. He came to Ulster Community from Queens College in the New York City University system where he was director of the Physical Education Majors Program.

Wolf received his Bachelors Degree in Physical Education and Science at New York University and his Masters in Safety Education and Health Education also at NYU.

Wolf, who is widely known in metropolitan coaching and physical education circles, coached basketball and baseball for nine years at Patterson State College in New Jersey. His 1959 baseball varsity compiled an 18-1 record and competed in the NAIA small college baseball tournament in Texas. He has also coached soccer, golf and other sports.

KENNETH J. WOLF

UCCC Program Grew

The varsity athletic program at UCCC has grown steadily under Wolf's leadership. The college now fields intercollegiate teams in baseball, bowling cross country, wrestling, golf, soccer and basketball.

Wolf also instituted elective program for athletics at UCCC in which the students competed for two hours a week for one year to earn two credits in a sport of their personal choice.

An approved basketball official, Wolf also earned international recognition in the field of paraplegic athletics. Last December he helped coach a U.S. paraplegic team in the second annual Pan-American Wheelchair Games at Buenos Aires, Argentina.

In 1968, he was coach for the U.S. team in the Paralympics in Israel, where more than 700 invalided and handicapped athletes from 30 countries participated. He promoted a wheelchair basketball game at the municipal auditorium two years ago, featuring the famed Bulova Watchmakers.

No Successor Named

Wolf said Ulster has not yet selected his successor. "The college is receiving applications and will consider applicants from within the organization and from the outside," he said.

Wolf said an appointment is expected in early April and he would work with the new appointee until the end of the current semester in June.

UCCC Now 11th in Nation

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community College has jumped from 16th place to 11th place in the national basketball ratings announced Thursday by the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) headquarters in Hutchinson, Kansas.

The 16th place ranking a week ago was the first ever accorded a UCCC team.

This week's ratings were compiled after Ulster crushed Manhattan CC of New York City, 133-74, in Kingston last Saturday, but before Tuesday's 124-62 romp over Queensboro Community of New York at the auditorium.

The weekly vote by regional representatives also came after the Senators were unexpectedly victimized by the West Point Plebes, 65-63, Wednesday at West Point.

UCCC received one first place vote worth 10 points as it did last week, ostensibly from Region XV and cast by Coach Bob Lake of Orange Community at Middletown. It drew a total of 18, indicating it had support from at least two other regions.

Christian College of the Southwest at Dallas, Texas, is the top NJCAA team for the second straight week, garnering 173 votes. Vincennes College of Vincennes, Indiana, was again second with 153 points.

News of UCCC's climb in the national rankings took some of the sting out of the loss to the Plebes.

"It's the only good news we've had this week," said Coach Mike Perry. "I think we can make the top ten and stay there for the remainder of the season."

Perry pointed out, and rightfully so, that the NJCAA (ratings) are based largely on results between junior colleges.

"The overall record is important and does influence the rankings," he explained, "but losses to freshman squads of major universities do not count as much against you as a defeat by a legitimate junior college team."

On the other hand, he added, any time a junior college team beats a major freshman squad, "like our win over St. John's," it has to influence the selectors.

Perry's reaction was significant in light of the fact that two of his five starters may not be eligible academically for the second half of the season. College authorities will make the announcement Monday.

If two men are declared ineligible, as is reasonably expected, UCCC will face tough going the rest of the way. But Perry remains confident and one of his reasons is the brilliant performances in recent games by Glenn Berry. The presence of Jerry Moss (guaranteed) and Berry in the same lineup still make UCCC a potent junior college team.

One thing in favor of UCCC is its balanced schedule for the remainder of the season, after playing a preponderance of its early contests on the road.

Orange County comes in next Tuesday, Dutchess on Feb. 7 and a crucial Mid-Hudson engagement is slated with Westchester on Feb. 13.

Meanwhile, two major road tests loom ahead. The first is scheduled Feb. 9 at Sullivan Community. The mountaineers got off to a rocky start then reeled off nine straight wins. Perhaps the toughest game remaining is that against Farmingdale (Long Island Aggies) on Feb. 14. And Coach Perry said that a long time ago.

The Really Big One

Kingston Hosts NFA

KINGSTON

The long-awaited clash between powerful Newburgh Free Academy and Kingston High takes place tonight at the Kate Walton Field House.

The mid-Hudson scholastic basketball fraternity isn't giving the Maroon a ghost of a chance against the Hill City speed merchants in the DUSO League test.

But this is the week that was —St. Bonaventure was a heavy choice over Villanova; New Mexico State was overkill against Creighton and UCCC figured to breeze against the West Point Plebes. Result: all the favorites lost. Could happen at the field house tonight.

Meanwhile, John Coleman High hosts Rondout Valley Central in a preview of their league rivalry that starts with Coleman's entry in the Ulster County Athletic League next season.

In other DUSO action, Middletown plays at Port Jervis and is favored to beat the Raiders. The result will be purely academic since nobody, but nobody, is expected to beat NFA this season.

Marlboro and Highland, trailing pace setting Rondout in the UCAL, gets a chance to improve their fortunes. Marlboro visits Onteora where the going could be rough, but host Highland is expected to breeze against Wallkill.

The big game in the Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) is the traditional between Poughkeepsie and Arlington, with the winner expected to go on to the championship.

Meanwhile, Saugerties High can bolster its chances for a Class A Sectional invitation by beating visiting Our Lady of Lourdes in Sawyertown.

There will be plenty of fireworks in the DUSO Village circuit when Monticello hosts neighboring Liberty and Fallsburg comes down Route 17 to visit Ellenville.

KING'S KAGERS — Head basketball Coach Ed Donohue of King's College at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is flanked by two former Kingston High All-DUSOs, Bruce Gilligan (L) a sophomore and Ken Gilligan (R) a freshman on the KC teams.

Ken Gilligan Shooting 22 Average for King's

WILKES-BARRE, Pa.—Ken Gilligan of Kingston has racked up a 22.2 point scoring average for the King's College freshman basketball team through its first 10 games, the King's public relations office has announced.

Meanwhile, his brother, Bruce is averaging 2.8 points per game for the varsity which has a 2-9 record. The King's frosh are 6 and 4 on the season. Bruce has been hampered by injury and illness.

Ken has had three outstanding games to date, with 33 points against the Hartwick Frosh, 29 at the University of Maryland and 26 at Luzerne Community College.

Bruce stands 6 feet 4, while Ken is 5-10. Bruce is a pre-law major at the college. The two former Kingston High and All-DUSO players are sons of Mr. and Mrs. John J. (Jack) Gilligan of 300 Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

Dane Turns Tiger

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. Before the New Paltz State University basketball team he ded south for a three-game stint in Georgia and Florida, Big Steve Dane claimed only one distinction with the Hawks. At 6-feet-8, he was the tallest player on the team.

But the salubrious southern climate has turned the Docile Dane into a tiger. He scored 18 points against Georgia Southwestern Monday night and bounced back with a heroic 32-point effort Wednesday against Florida Presbyterian.

True, the Hawks lost both—to GSW, 70-65; and 86-64 to Florida Presbyterian. But Dane has been the big story on the trip. His 32 points represents the highest total by a New Paltz player this season and, of course, a career high for Dane, just as his 18 points were Monday.

"He's just been sensational," said Coach Sheppard. "Both teams we've played so far were tough, but Dane has been unstoppable." Before going south, Dane, seeing only limited action, had scored 37 points in 10 games for a 3.7 average. Now he is regarded as a solid starter for the remainder of State's schedule.

Florida Presbyterian rolled to a 54-28 halftime lead and was in charge all the way. Steve McElroy led the locals with 24 points. Jim Leonardo added 15 for New Paltz.

Bart Dutto Retains Title

NEW PALTZ

Bart Dutto, a member of the Kingston High School varsity ski team, successfully defended his title in the Boys Open (14-18) race in the fourth annual New Paltz Jaycees junior ski meet at Bonticou Ski Hill here. He was awarded a trophy.

Cindy Roehrs of New Paltz led the girls in the Girls III competition.

Tom Speisman of Kingston won the Boys III event and his sister, Penny Spiesman, led the Girls IV. Kenny Garvin of New Paltz was first in Boys IV.

Dutto was timed in 1:32.7 through the 32-gate slalom course which was tricky and fast. Tim O'Donnell, a KHS teammate, was second to Dutto in 1:40.6. Robby Johnson (New Paltz) was third on 1:52.2 and Frank Valentino of Highland, fourth in 2:50.8.

Mohr Heads Entries

KINGSTON

The Kingston Bowling Association has appointed one of its past presidents, William Mohr, to head the committee on local entries for the fourth annual New York State Bowling Championships which open here in April.

Mohr enthusiastically endorsed Tournament Manager Addison Jones' goal of 300 five-man teams for the state tourney.

"There are approximately 2,500 male bowlers in the KBA," Mohr pointed out. "That's the equivalent of 500 teams, so I see no reason why we can't attract 300 teams for the tournament."

Both Mohr and Jones stressed that bowlers who have never before participated in a state tournament should enter this one as a token of appreciation for the many businessmen who sponsor local bowling year after year.

"Every bowler who enters the tournament receives a 75 per cent handicap per game off a 200 scratch, based on his average of last season," Mohr said. "Every team has a chance to win the $1,500 top prize in the handicap division."

In fact, said Mohr, there will be cash prizes for at least 500 teams, with Kingston area bowlers having a psychological edge over the invaders. The same ratio of one entry in every five will finish in the money in the minor events.

Mrs. Neil Glennon, who heads the secretarial staff under Tournament Manager Jones, gave the KBA a detailed report on entries to date.

She advised that a late surge has created a backlog in posting and confirming entries. However, more than 1,100 team entries have been received to date. More than 2,500 doubles and more than 5,000 singles also have been confirmed, she reported.

Ray's Rip Raiders

KINGSTON

With redhot Rod Chando setting the pace, Ray's Chevrolets drubbed Bernard's Raiders, 118-88, in the Battle of the Unbeatens in the YMCA basketball league.

The teams sported identical records of 5-0 going into the game. Jack's Barber Shop (5-0) is now the only other unbeaten team in the league.

Despite missing the first four minutes of action, Chando, a former UCCC star, potted 36 points and Ron Miller had 22 for Ray's, with all other players in double figures.

Gary Greiner led the Raiders, 1969 fall YMCA "Fall League" champions, with 34 points and Warren Grittman, another ex-UCCCer added 25. Ray's led 24-19 at the quarter and were in command all the way.

Yallum's broke a six-game losing streak with a 72-49 romp over the Tigers, who suffered their sixth straight setback.

Jack Mautner of Yallum's and Dan Vogt of Tigers had 25 points each. Joe Gruberg added 18 for Yallum's.

Ferraro to Play In All-Star Tilt

SAUGERTIES

Mike Ferraro, former All-DUSO League basketball player with Kingston High School and league MVP his senior year, will make his first appearance on a basketball court in seven years when he suits up for Ray's Chevrolet Saturday night for their game against the Saugerties Athletic Association All-Stars.

The game will start at 8 p.m. in Donlon Auditorium and will be preceded by an all-star tilt, featuring players from Joe Benjamin's Youth Recreation League. Al. proceeds for the event will go to the SAA.

Ferraro, former third baseman for the New York Yankees and Seattle Pilots, currently on the roster of the Rochester Red Wings of the International League, has been that circuit's All-Star third sacker for the past two seasons.

Ray's is paced by Ron Miller, averaging 26.8 points-per-game, while the All-Stars have Frank Allen at 29.7 and Pete Steinfurth at 29.5. The Chevies, coached by Jim Massa, are 6-0 in the Kingston YMCA League.

Mass Cross-Country Race Set by Rosendale Nordics

ROSENDALE

Rosendale Nordic Ski Club expects about 40 entries for its 10 kilometer cross country fun race Sunday morning over the club's course here.

This is the Nordics' first attempt at a mass-start race patterned after the Brattleboro, Vt., Washington's Birthday race which drew almost 300 starters last winter. The grand daddy of all, of course, is the Swedish Vasalopet, a 53-mile marathon which annually attracts more than 6,000 skiers in a mass start.

Sunday's race is not a high pressure competition. Rather it will be staged low key in order to give the Sunday skier a chance at competition. No club or association affiliation is required and the competitor needs no special qualifications to enter. The race will be conducted over two loops of a five kilometer course and no time limit has been set for its completion.

Prizes will be given in age groups from 6 to 70 years of age. Entries are still being received by Carl Strobel, race chairman, Parkcrest, Rosendale.

Introducing A Used Car Guarantee . . .

It Doesn't Come With Every Car

It's a 100% guarantee. Not one of those "we-pay-half-you-pay-half deals."

And it comes only with used cars that pass the Volkswagen 16 point Safety and Performance test.

This is how it works. When we get a car as a trade in, we give it the inspection. Check it out completely. If it passes, we tune up, tighten, repair or replace everything that needs tuning up, tightening, repairing or replacing.

Then we guarantee it 100% repair or replacement of all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1,000 miles.

What kind of cars get our guarantees? All kinds. Chevys, Fords, Ramblers, VWs. (We get all kinds of trade-ins for new Volkswagens).

So. The next time somebody tries to sell you a used car that's "just like new," ask about the guarantee. Then remember us.

No, our used cars aren't "just like new." No used car can be. But no used cars could be in better shape, either.

Dear Abby

'Wants to Be Alone'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you've never had another letter like this one. The situation is as follows: My husband has never been a very sociable person. He doesn't enjoy being with relatives, his or mine. In fact, he's never enjoyed being with his own children. Our two eldest are now married and gone, and our youngest recently left for college, so my husband moved out of our bedroom and into the spare bedroom.

I like people. Abby, and always enaoyed having friends and neighbors drop in to visit. When this happened, my husband would feel so "intruded upon" that he'd just excuse himself and find someplace to go.

About a month ago he said it would be better for everyone if he got his own apartment just so he could be by himself. Knowing how stubborn he is, I didn't try to talk him out of it. You understand we aren't angry with each other or anything like that, and he can well afford the apartment. He comes back to visit me often, and seems in a much happier frame of mind. Of course, I'd rather have him home all the time, but I don't want him to be unhappy. No one knows about the apartment but me. What do you think of this setup?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I think your husband is going to extremes to "be by himself." (A den or spare bedroom to be used as his "private retreat" should suffice.) It seems to me that a husband who first wants "out" of the bedroom, then wants "out" of the house, will probably next want "out" of your life.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two small children, and I am very much in love with my husband.

My problem is that I am extremely attracted to my husband's boss. When we see each other socially, I find myself wanting to be near him, and show my affection, but instead I greet him with polite coolness, and avoid him all evening. Oddly enough, I have the feeling that he is attracted to me, too.

Now, I think I have overdone it, Abby, and I am afraid I have hurt his feelings, and he thinks that I actually dislike him. Nothing could be further from the truth. Being an honest person, basically, this bothers me. Do you think I should tell him truthfully why I have been so cool to him? I don't like the feeling I have about the whole thing.

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP: If you are looking for trouble, just "confess" to a man whom you find extremely attractive, and suspect the feeling is mutual, that you've been "cool" to him because you don't want him to know how much you really like him.

My advice to you is to discontinue the artificial winds from the north, and stick by your husband when his boss is in the company.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I go. I work in a fairly large office. All of the girls I eat lunch with are married, myself included. Every day without fail, one of the girls insists on discussing her marital affairs (and she doesn't leave anything out, either) with the girls at lunchtime. We all feel as tho we have a ringside (or should I say "bedside") seat in their private life. Is there any way someone can tell this person how we feel about this very private matter being discussed at the lunch table? Please sign me.

SICK OF SEX TALK

DEAR SICK: Yes. Why don't YOU take the bull by the horns and tell her?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TALK ME OUT OF IT" IN CLEVELAND: Memorize the following gem of wisdom by Ella Wheeler Wilcox:

"Talk health. That dreary never-ending tale
Of mortal maladies is worn and stale;
You cannot charm or interest or please
By harping on that minor chord, disease.
Say that you are well, and all is well with you,
And God shall hear your words and make them true."

• • •

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envleope.

• • •

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1970

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Communications are highlighted. Imperative that you catch up on correspondence. There may be much busy work. But important task is to outline format, to clarify opinions and positions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your feelings run deep. To deny them would be attempting to deceive yourself. Get affairs at home in order. Give and receive love. This will make your world go around—in a merry way!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on resolving legal questions. You relate to most persons in meangingful manner today. But don't expect to have it all your own way. In marriage, you will make major concession.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pay heed to diet, health requirements. Key is moderation—which means avoid excess. What appears to be serious dilemma will be solved—in your favor. Added money is "on the way."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good lunar aspect today coincides with romance, creative endeavors. You make needed changes; you get going on pet project. You enjoy what you do and opposite sex is drawn to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight on home, property, care for elderly individual. New outlook is desirable. Don't hang onto past. Be progressive, original and independent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on short journey, special message involving close relative. Your hunch pays off; pay heed to it. Learn by teaching. Means express willingness to share knowledge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money, personal possessions dominate. Your potential for success is stressed through versatile approach. Display your unique abilities—and sense of humor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cycle high; circumstances turn in your favor. Your judgment, intuition become more reliable. Initiate projects. Buy some new wearing apparel. Brighten appearance, surroundings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What is hidden needs attention. Means don't sweep problems under the rug. Come out in open; say what you mean. Co-operate with one who is conducting charity drive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on friend who shows appreciation with lovely gift. Make peace. Gesture of goodwill will give you a tremendous boost. Act accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Study AQUARIUS message. Accept invitations. Elevate self-esteem. You are worthy of reward. Feel this is so and it will be—especially today.

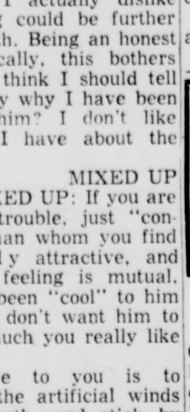

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are meticulous. You like things in order. You may appear cold, but you are a humanitarian at heart. APRIL could be your most significant month this year.

TEEN FORUM

ARGUMENT: (Q.) This girl has me troubled. We thought we loved each other. Then I had to leave for several months. At first she never went out with anyone else. Then we broke up so she could have dates with other boys.

Now I am home again. I still like her and she still likes me, and we see each other. But we argue all the time. She says she's to blame for us breaking up and she messed things up for me.

She didn't mess things up for me, and I keep telling her she didn't. But I can't get through to her.—Puzzled in Pittsburgh.

(A.) Separation often changed things. Something has changed for your girl friend. I believe she is interested in someone else and feels guilty when you are with her.

If you weren't around she might not feel guilty, and she might be able to concentrate better on the boy she is really interested in.

CRUSH: (Q.) I have a crush on a cute girl. She rides my bus. I've been in love with her for a month. I think maybe she likes me, too. At least she smiles at me. I know this other girl who might introduce us, but I'm too shy.

I am 15 and we both go to the same school. How can I meet her?—Desperate in Springfield, Mass.

(A.) Do not hunt for someone to introduce you. Just step up to her smile, and introduce yourself. And ask her for her telephone number. If your shyness shows, she'll understand. Many 15-year-old boys are shy.

Opening lead—♠ A

Here is another problem hand. You are South and have reached a slightly optimistic six spades. West opens the ace and another trump. Now plan your play to make your contract.

The way to do this is to count to 12. You start with four trump tricks of your own and can ruff your deuce of hearts in dummy for a fifth trump trick. The ace of clubs, ace-king of diamonds and three top hearts give you six more. You have to find a 12th somewhere.

Dummy's fifth club is a possibility. Maybe clubs will divide 4-4 and maybe you will be able to find enough entries to dummy for you to ruff three clubs with your three trumps and still get back to dummy to draw the last trump held by East or West. This is a distinct possibility but does it give you your best chance? The answer to that is, "Not on your tintype."

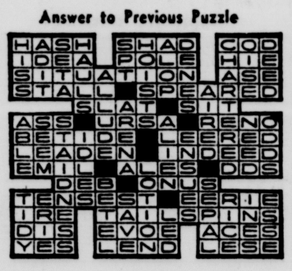

There is a much better play at your disposal. You can set up one of your diamonds. Looks silly at first glance but look things over carefully. By this time, you should have found the winning series of plays.

Start by cashing dummy's ace and king of diamonds and then discard your deuce of hearts on the ace of clubs. Now run off your three good hearts in order to get rid of both dummy's small diamonds. Next you ruff a diamond with dummy's last trump and get back to your hand by ruffing a club.

You still have two trumps left to take care of East's one trump and your last diamond has become your 12th trick.

At Least Lowell Tried

NEW YORK (AP) — A color film report of an expedition into the jungles of New Guinea including visits with primitive tribes occupied an early NBC hour Thursday night.

Lowell Thomas, in one of his rare TV appearances, served as narrator and did his best to make the audience believe the expedition was fraught with peril.

The jungle scenery was impressive and the natives, with sticks through their noses, were interesting. But it was hard to believe the party, led by an armed police patrol, was really in danger from people who hunt with wooden spears.

Thomas said the natives were cannibals. Maybe, but at another point the program reported that they lived primarily on green bananas.

Generally it was one of those real-life adventure tales and seemed a bit old-fashioned and overblown for current television. Even when Thomas was explaining how dangerous were the natives, they were grinning and performing for the cameras just like people do from New York to New Delhi.

The hour did have what may be a television first: In many scenes the women appeared naked to the waist, covered only by strings of beads. It is dubious whether this presages an era of topless television, but it was sensible of the censors to avoid any Nice-Nellie cuts.

Programs of this genre have been in mild vogue with network programmers since CBS' National Geographic series and ABC's Cousteau series were enthusiastically praised both by critics and Washington.

Weekend programs of particular interest start with a nature study tonight called "The World of the Beaver"—7:30-8:30 EST. It conflicts with the premiere of CBS' "Tim Conway Show," a series about a one-plane, one-pilot airline—8-8:30. Conway's co-star is Joe Flynn, with whom he worked in "McHale's Navy."

NBC's second show in its "American Rainbow" series comes along Saturday morning—11:30—with Lorne Greene leading a tour of New York's Lincoln Center. Saturday night a number of stations will broadcast a 90-minute version of the 1928 play, "The Front Page," with the cast of its recent Broadway revival, including Robert Ryan, Helen Hayes and Vivian Vance.

WHY WE SAY

SPANIARDS: The Spaniards thought of the West as the Land of Gold, and therefore called the entrance to San Francisco Harbor the "Golden Gate." Two centuries later their belief was confirmed by the great California gold rush.

People's City—Shawangunk Decision Due

By SHANE CROSBY

WALLKILL

A decision by Shawangunk Planning Board on the application for a "People's City" of some 62 homes to be constructed in this area is expected Tuesday, according to Board Chairman Ralph Brach.

The development, planned by the Rev. Harley Taylor for use by low income families, has been under study following a preliminary hearing early in January.

At that time the board said it would have to review the proposed project and would release its findings withinn 30 days. No indication of the board's final verdict on the project was given by the chairman Thursday when he announced the decision would be released Tuesday.

Spokesmen for the Rev. Mr. Taylor commented that "we are optimistic" about the outcome of the board's investigation and one member of the Southern Ulster Migrant Assistance Committee said she expected the board to take the entire 30 days to come to a decision.

The Rev. Mr. Taylor, reported ill, was not available for comment.

Objection to the proposed community has been voiced by the Wallkill Taxpayers' Association and individuals who contend the increase in the population would tax town facilities and would "change the character of the neighborhood" from the present spread-out pattern to a conjested "city atmosphere."

Objection has also been raised that the plan runs counter to proposed zoning regulations that calls for larger acreages than would be found in the proposed "Peoples' City."

The Rev. Mr. Taylor has said the development would be open to persons who have an income of at least $4,000 a year and that the individual may purchase the home at low federal mortgage rates in accordance with the new Federal Housing Act, section 235.

The houses would cost 10 per cent below normal under a program of manpower training, also a federal project. State and Federal agencies are watching for the outcome of the project with the hopes of opening the door to similar developments elsewhere in the country.

Included in the interested governmental agencies watching the progress of "People's City" is Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's Office of Community Action, an arm of his Executive Chamber.

Area representative Howard Court of that office said at a recent hearing on the project that he is "eager to see the project succeed" and hopes that the community would "look at it that way also."

The homes would be placed ½- to ⅓-acre lots in the development on the former Anders property. Costing between $14,000 and $17,500 each, the homes would be of pre-fabricated type with wooden studs, a design approved by the FHA, according to the Rev. Mr. Taylor.

Roads, sidewalks, a private park, lake and other recreational facilities are also included in the plans for People's City that would be developed at a rate of about 35 homes a year.

No state subsidies are being sought by the Rev. Mr. Taylor and his group, but he said the state is interested in the idea and is offering technical assistance.

DENIES ABDUCTION — As a crowd looks on, Deborah Stevenson, 20 (C) of San Francisco, is questioned by police in Manila today about her alleged kidnaping. Miss Stevenson denied she was abducted by Cris Lecaroz, 23, nephew of a Philippine provincial governor and congressman from a suburban college dormitory three days ago. She said she was not yet married to Lecaroz "but I would like to marry him. We planned to elope." (UP RADIOPHOTO).

Some Changes in Red Hook

RED HOOK

Red Hook Town Planning Board has made some changes in the proposed comprehensive plan, and will hold a final hearing on the revision sometime in February.

The Planning Board will meet with the Town Board Monday to iron out any further changes, and the revision will go to the printers for the final effort.

The Town Board has, in effect, already sanctioned a portion of the zoning by resolution, affecting the establishment of any non-conforming business or housing in the town until the zoning is officially accepted or rejected. This was the result of an intensive campaign, complete with petitions, of towns people who expressed concern about the expected influx of various types of "objectionable" planned building.

Revisions included loosening restrictions on clauses concerning non-conforming use and some acreage requirements were expanded to account for better sewerage and water service.

County planners have also given opinions to the board, suggesting a less complex site plan procedure, cutting down on the red tape necessary for accomplishing approbation.

The town is also reconsidering the clause which proclaims that any non-conforming structure cannot be rebuilt if destroyed more than 50 per cent by fire. The Village of Rhinebeck abolished a similar clause after residents objected at a public hearing.

The Village of Red Hook Planning Board has given zoning information to village officials, and in the Village of Tivoli a newly appointed group of officials has been named to the Planning Board, with proposals to be made public soon.

Dutchess Homicide--Extends to Illinois

By WALTER S. CLARK

DOVER PLAINS

Investigation of the murder of a 24 year-old woman, whose frozen body was discovered under a bridge in the Town of North East, was extended to Illinois today after State Police officials established the identity of the victim.

Troopers said the woman had been positively identified as Patricia Dee Holtz, whose last known address in 1966 was 30 Elm Street, Hillside, Ill.

A spokesman for Major C. Richard Samson and Captain R. E. Boland said search was being pressed for clues that might lead to an arrest. Anyone who may have known the woman in this area should contact state police.

Captain Boland made known that an autopsy performed at Vassar Hospital disclosed the woman had died of internal hemorrhages resulting from a stab wound of the abdomen. It was also reported other wounds were found on the body.

Examination of the area where the woman was found by a workman on Tuesday, indicated that the body had been rolled down an embankment and under a small bridge on Smithfield Road in the Town of North East. The body had been covered with a gold colored circular shaped bedspread with a fringe of the same color.

Connecticut State Police are working with BCI officers from Troop K in an endeavor to make an arrest and determine a motive for the woman's death.

Monday Railroad Strike Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Contract talks which have failed to produce a settlement since they began late in 1968 again threaten the nation with a railroad strike.

Negotiators for four maintenance and repair unions and bargainers for the nation's rail carriers broke off talks Thursday night. A strike next Monday appeared possible.

Chief railroad negotiator John P. Hiltz said "there are no more talks scheduled." He said the unions had indicated they would "take some action between now and Monday morning."

William W. Winpisinger, top union spokesman, said 'I think there will be one (a strike)." He said the Monday deadline had been mentioned, but it was not hard and fast.

President Nixon exhausted his authority to step into the dispute after he issued a 60-day cooling off order to head off a strike last year. Congress could still intervene if a walkout transpired.

The only issue still in dispute in the two-year contract is a proposed work rules change that would permit members of certain unions to do work now being done by other unions. It was this rules change that caused the sheet metal workers to reject a proposed contract settlement already agreed to by the other three unions- the machinists, electricians and boilermaker-blacksmiths.

That proposal, rejected Dec. 17, had called for a 68-cent hourly increase for the 48,000 union members by the end of 1970. The unions had agreed not to accept any proposal unless it was acceptable to all four.

There was no indication how extensive the strike, if it materializes, would be. The unions last year threatened a selective strike against a handful of rail lines to bring pressure on the industry. The carriers, except for Penn Central, said they would shut down nationwide if a selective strike happened.

"We've exhausted literally everything anyone can think of to try to resolve the impasse," Winpisinger said, "and we've been unable to come up with the piece of the puzzle that makes it go together."

Dr. Plass Appointed Acting Health Boss

KINGSTON

Dr. John B. Plass, director of the Ulster County Chest Clinic, has been named acting health commissioner as of Feb. 1.

His appointment was made this week by the Ulster County Board of Health in order to temporarily fill the post being vacated by Health Commissioner Dr. Vernon B. Link who has resigned to take a new position with the Dutchess County Department of Health.

Dr. Plass will receive the same salary as budgeted for Dr. Link which totals $25,500 annually. Link was offered $26,000 as an incentive to remain in Ulster County but turned it down in favor of the $30,000 Dutchess County post.

Applications for the post of Ulster County Health Commissioner are being received.

Dr. Plass served as medical director of the Ulster County TB Hospital from 1965-67 and became clinic director after the adjustment of the former TB Hospital, thus continuing the responsibility for county-wide TB patient work.

A native of Dutchess County, he recevied his medical education at the New York Medical College, New York City and served his internship at Flower Fifth Avenue Hospital from 1938-40 where for the next several years he had his residency. He served his residency in tuberculosis at the Metropolitan Hospital, New York City, going from there into the U.S. Army Air Force and graduating from the School of Aviation Medicine.

Dr. Plass was resident physican of the S. W. Bowne Memorial (Tuberculosis) Hospital at Poughkeepsie and was in charge of the City of Poughkeepsie and Dutchess County Chest Clinics. He also was medical director of the S and N Bowne Tuberculosis Hospital in Poughkeepsie from 1954-57.

Active in Poughkeepsie in private practice, Dr. Plass served a patient clientele composed of 90 per cent pulmonary diseases. He also served during this period and for seven years as physician to the Infirmary of Poughkeepsie.

You won't hear anything on this Fisher 125 you wouldn't want the children to hear.

CHILDREN'S EARS are very sensitive. It's a well-known fact that children pick up foreign languages more quickly than adults do. And when something unusual happens in your family, the children can generally tell from your tone of voice, can't they?

If you're wondering what all this has to do with the Fisher stereo system shown above, consider the following:

Even in one of those rare musical households, children still depend primarily on electronic devices to train their musical ear. Devices like screechy little record players, tinny kitchen and bedroom radios, or shrill TV speakers.

It would be unfair to expect that the child who grows up with these distortion characteristics will eventually come to know and love live music. But it would be no wonder if he came to prefer unnatural, distorted music.

If you had an instrument that produced music-like sounds in your own home, your children would be much more certain what live music sounds like. The Fisher 125 is just such an instrument. It combines a compact 4-speed automatic turntable with a high-powered, high-sensitivity AM-FM Stereo Receiver, and matches it with a pair of acoustically-matched heavy duty speaker systems that can reproduce the entire audible spectrum from 37 Hz to beyond audibility.

Protect your children from the foreign sounds. Give them the real thing . . . the priceless gift of good music.
